Food prices were no higher on balance last month than they were a year earlier the best performance for almost 20

The news was welcomed by government ministers. Mr unemployed and the seven Norman Tebbit, the Employment Secretary, hailed it as a notable achievement. Inflation was now rising more slowly night than in the United States and by lass than half the rate for Govern Europe as a whole, he said.

But their was an angry reaction from pensioners' groups and Opposition spokesmen who say people on social benefits are being cheated by the new system of uprating would have gone up by even based on inflation in the year to less, ministers will argue. The Government's tax and prices index, also published yesterday, shows that workers would have needed pay rises of only 3.2 per cent to maintain the value of their pay packets. The result has been a big boost to living standards.

Government hopes of reducing inflation further in the longer term now depend largely on moderation of pay deals.

Mr Tebbit admitted yesterday that inflation would rise slightly later this year but said progress had been better than expected at Budget time. "There is no reason why we should not be within the 6 per cent forecast,"

Officials said later that Mr Tebbit had taken into account the impact on prices if mortgage rates go up next month. A I per cent rise in the mortgage rate is reckoned to add about 0.3 per Few women are using the law "Although the Equal Pay Act has eradicated some blatant pay inequalities, the early momentum has not been sustained. For women, anequal pay, low pay, job segregation and the 'pin money mentality' are as much a reality today as they were then. The authors say that the law also fails to tackle job segregation, by saying a woman must compare herself with a man doing light work in the same workplace, although 45 per cent of women still work in segregated jobs. The gap between men's and women's pay is once more widening. In 1970 women's

What you're looking at is no Sea of Tranquillity.

Neither is it a scene from the imagination of some science-fiction artist (although we commissioned one of Britain's finest sci-fi artists to paint it).

It is what you would actually see if the waters of the North Sea suddenly became invisible.

Silhouetted against a huge moon are the four giant production platforms that form the core of the Brent oilfield.

The Brent Field, operated by Shell, lies far out to sea, roughly halfway between Scotland and Norway and about 100 miles northeast of Shetland.

They are built to withstand onehundred foot waves and winds gusting up to 160 mph while continuing to collect oil and gas, 24 hours a day, from rock depths lying some two miles beneath the sea-floor.

Floating in the far distance (bottom right) is the drilling rig Stadrill, prospecting for oil in another part of the Brent Field.

And riding the invisible seas with contemptuous ease (top right) is the 23,000 ton semi-submersible, pipe-laying barge Semac I.

FLAGS: a major new gas-gathering scheme in the North Sea.

We used Semac I to lay one of the world's longest, largest, deepest undersea pipelines. (The painting shows the pipe being fed over the stern of the barge and trailing down to the seabed.)

The pipeline is the backbone of a major new North Sea gas-gathering scheme known to the oil industry as FLAGS-Far North Liquids & Associated Gas System

It will enable us to bring ashore the substantial and hitherto untapped gas reserves of Brent and other oilfields in the northern North Sea.

The FLAGS pipeline, 36" across and made of steel coated with concrete, runs 280 miles along the seabed between the Brent Field and St. Fergus in Scotland.

Laying it was an astonishing feat.

The North Sea is no millpond. It is quite the most hostile stretch of water the oil and gas industry has ever tackled.

Much of the pipeline was laid in appalling weather: force 10 gales, thick fog rolling in the troughs between giant waves, zero visibility.

The FLAGS system will before long be supplying some 12% of Britain's gas needs. (The Brent Field already supplies about an eighth of Britain's oil.)

But neither statistics nor adjectives (nor the vastness of our operating costs) can ever give you a real sense of the scale and scope of our work in the North Sea.

The Brent Field: an offshore oiltown.

The Brent Field, for instance, does not simply consist of the four great platforms attended by a pipe-laying barge and a drilling rig or two.

Several other giant structures(like the floating oil-storage and-loading facility, Spar) are nearby. And platforms may be attended by flotels' (floating hotels) and semi-submersible diving barges.

Tugs, rankers and supply boats ply the surface, the latter bringing in everything from drill-pipe, cement for well-casing and drilling mud, to food and fuel.

Under the surface, mini-subs and diving-bells are at work. While in the skies, helicopters constantly come and go, bringing in vital tools and flying drilling crews and other technicians in and out.

Our platforms and rigs are crewed by over 3,000 men, who manage to tuck away well over 100 tons of food each week.

Power to keep the big platforms working is generated by turbines similar to those which fly large jet aircraft.

Computer banks continuously receive and process information about subsea oilwells and the many working functions of each platform, key data being relayed simultaneously to the platforms and Shell headquarters in Aberdeen.

The cost of these operations is so immense that it beggars description.

One way of putting it is that Shell's expenditure in the North Sea has amounted to more than half a million pounds per day, every day for the last eighteen years.

When we add up our chequebook stubs, our total investment to date works out at more than £4,000 million in 1981 money. Those figures double when you include the sums invested by us on behalf of our partners.

Although there are projects which cost more, in terms of sheer technological innovation there is no other achievement on earth to match the conquest of the North Sea.

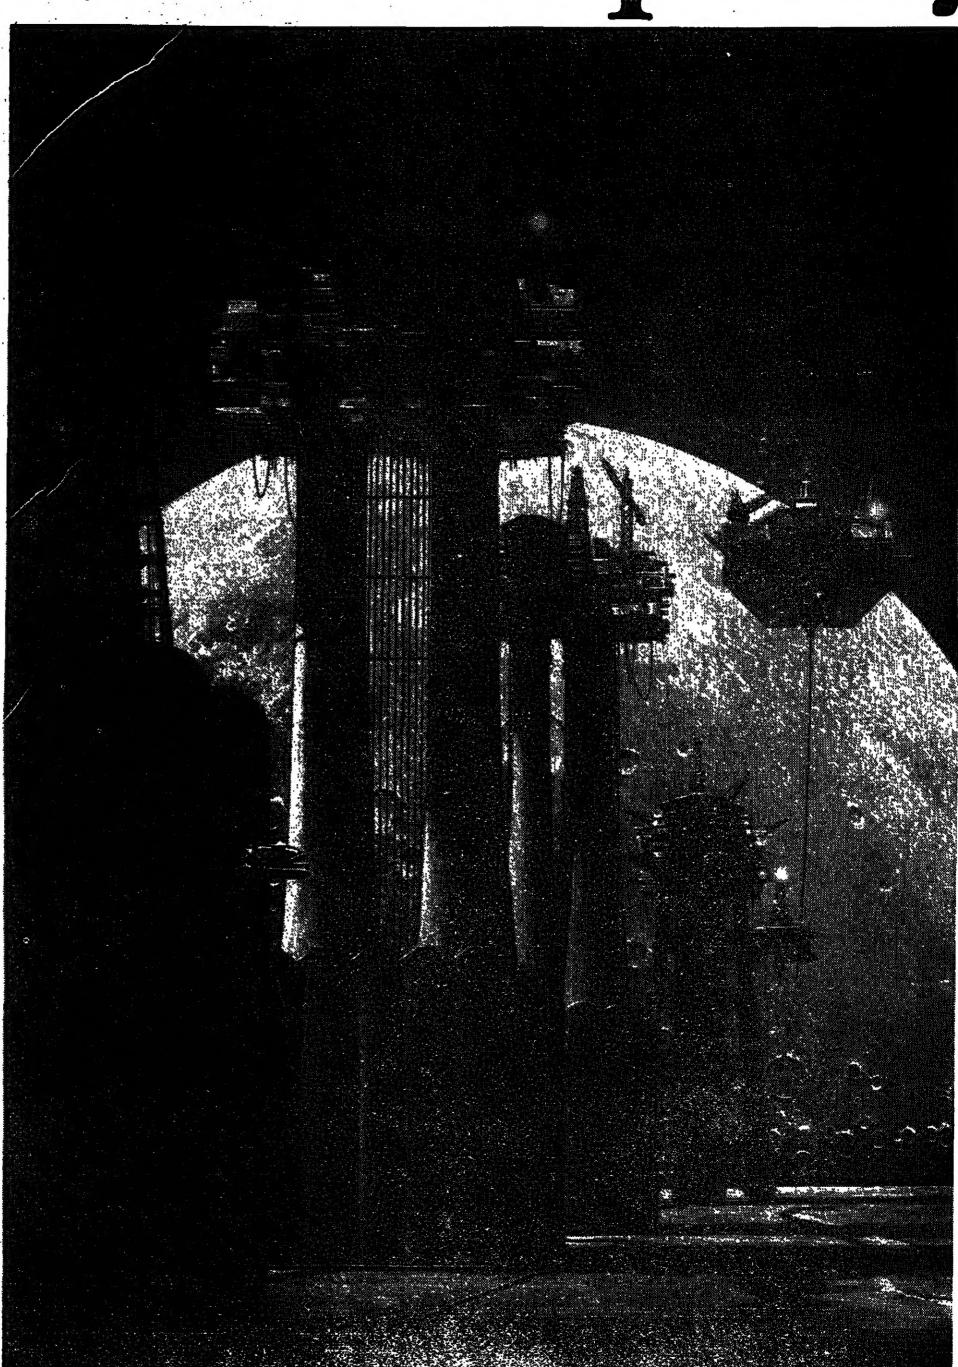

We have pushed back the limits of technology so far that the only feat which invites comparison is otherworldly: the placing of the first men on the moon by NASA's Apollo space programme.

As a matter of fact, the computerroom that monitors our operations has a great deal in common with that famous control-room in Houston.

And Shell is proud to be in the forefront of an endeavour which only twenty years ago, would have been dismissed as pure science-fiction.

You can be sure of Shell

Mr Sparks, a London Transport businspector of Canvey Island, Essex, accompanied by his friend Mr Gerry Lockyer, aged 41, curator of London's War Museum, relived the action of December 1942. Tonight is the last performance of Junan Mitchell's Another Country by boys at Eton College. But lower boys, aged below 15, were told shortly before the three-day run started on Thursday at the college's Farrer Theatre that the controversial material was not suitable for them. Though the boys and several junior staff were reportedly angry at the ban, anyone who has seen the play, with its less than laudatory profile of a mainstream public school, will sympathize with the head's sensitivity. A PHSpectator on the opening night tells me the production was excellent, with Robert Freeburn, the drama head, outstanding in the only adult part, even though some parental expressions in the crowded auditorium were "a bit on the stony side". Meanwhile, the London company which plans to make a film of Mitchell's play tells me it has found a location. All I can say at this stage is that it is not in the Slough and Windsor area.

The modesty of the Swedes is admirable, of course, but I did not know they had so much to be modest about. The current issue of Sweden Non lists 90 "moderately interesting facts" about the country: for example, Johansson, Andersson, Karlsson and Nilsson are the most common names; the Swedes come second only to the US in TV and telephone ownership, and in consumption of newsprint; in the far north summer is 23 days long while winter runs for 225; only 7.5 per cent of the country's land area is suitable for cultivation, and the highest mountain is a modest 2111 metres high.

The failures of trying to be fair

Oxford during the past 20 years has been busy selling itself short. The Franks Commission of 1966, sired by Guilt Complex out of Self-Doubt, reports distinguished more for the reputation of their chairmen than for a determination to maintain and enhance the standing of a university once pre-emisent for more than its

The latest report in the series, from a committee chaired by Sir Kenneth Dover, has a pedigree similar to Franks's except that it is by Guilt Complex out of Egalitarianism. The main recommendations have already been summarized in the press: only two selection procedures for undergraduate admission to Oxford, one (interview plus "oral" examination) to be held open to all, the other (written examination) to be confined to pre-A level candidates; both procedures to operate in November/December. all entrance awards to be abolished. Modest reforms to be sure, yet sufficient to whet the appetite of connoisseurs of mediocrity and to alert the vigilance of elitists. It would be possible to read much of the report without being aware that entry to Oxford for home and EEC applicants (O brave new phrase!) ought to be, even if it is not, a matter of applying the highest Hardly surprising the committee believes that "just as the most important person in the operating theatre is the patient, so the most important person in any admission system is the applicant (well, yes: examiners do sometimes long to be surgeous). From this belief it follows, or at least it does for the committee, that any system of admission must be "simple" and "fair". What could be fairer than to exclude post-A level candidates from a written examination as the committee proposes to do? What could be simpler than to abolish, as the committee proposes to do, scholarships which recognize exceptional merit displayed by candidates in that examination? Don't, as an examiner, worry about standards: don't lose any sleep over high learning, don't waste your enthusiasm on such undeserving papers as those likely to be awarded the very highest marks; better devote your enthusiasm to "discriminating between applicants whose acceptance or rejection is in

The emphasis on fairness and simplicity leads to wrong priorities and self-contradiction. It just is not true that "there is a certain incompatibility between effort to secure as many first-class applicants as possible and effort to ensure a fair deal for the average applicant". The average applicant gets a fair deal if he is beaten by a better applicant. It must be perverse to produce a recommendation which treats post-A Level candidates unfairly by excluding them from a form of competition (the written examination) which may enable them to show their merit.

The report is not designed to secure for Oxford candidates of the highest academic potential, Its purpose is quite different. Whereas the proper concern of any Oxford committee on admissions should be the best means of securing the best candidates, the attitude of the Dover Committee is different. Oxford must fair, and he seen to be fair. What is fairness in this context?

In two words, "equal opportunity". Equal opportunity for whom, and for what? For the candidates to provide evidence of their academic potential irrespective of age, social class, econmomic status and educational background".

What does the committee propose? For all candidates, including pre-A Level candidates, an interview strengthened by "oral" tests and supported by written work done at school. No written tests in this mode of examination are to be set by Colleges, not because they might not neutralize" but because such tests might develop into a multiplicity of alternative entrance examinations.

Is there any interviewer at any university capable of ensuring that applicants have an equal oppor-tunity to show their academic potential "irrespective of age, social class, economic status and educational background?

three candidates competing for one place. A is the son of an industrialist and has been sent to a comprehensive; B is the daughter of a docker who has been educated privately, C is an orphan who is virtually selftaught and who has supported himself in the last year by gambling at cards. You have no written evidence except the school references and an essay written by each candidate while still at school, almost certainly not on the same topic. You have as long as you like for each interview. You have "to be fair and to be seen to be fair".

You are not God Almighty. You are, like anyone cise, fallible. What are your chances of being fair and being seen to be fair, and how do intellectual and temperamental suitability?

If you are not God Almighty, why try to be fair? Why not simply try to select the best? If you succeed you will be fair, if you don't you are not necessarily unfair at all, more likely incompetent

As an alternative to entry by interview and "oral" test there is roposed the written examination (but not open to post-A Level candidates). How many readers of this newspaper will believe that one Oxford college has argued that an interview is of higher validity when there are no papers to "prejudice"

There may, however, be a chance that Oxford can yet survive the bears. It is the colleges which admit candidates, and it is the colleges which have it in their power over the next few months to stop the long drift away from excellence - a drift always justified by appeals to specious fairness and illusory simplicity.

Over the past few years the colleges, at Cambridge as well as at Oxford, have been weakened by assaults from outside. No college can any longer fix its own fees, no college can any longer take as many home applicants as it might wish. Colleges can deplore and survive such external pressure. What destroys any institution is the enemy within: the short-seller, the egalitarian, those who use the institution to promote their own political beliefs or to secure their own personal advantage.

Yet it is possible to combine maximum opportunity with high standards: it is possible to stand firm on merit and refuse to lower requirements: it is even possible to be fair, and to be seen to be fair, in choosing the best candidates, provided that fairness is never a matter for parade or self-congratulation.

This week we saw a sick man, moving slowly and stiffly past his sixty-ninth birthday and berating the West in the kind of ideological platitudes criticized as stale by the plenum itself. There was no talk of the economic and administrative reforms that Mr Andropov hinted at in November, and no movement at the top. He brought in Mr Vitaly Vorotnikov, a close associate who had cleaned up corruption in Krasnodar on the Black Sea, and made him a candidate member of the Politburo. It was a small victory.

There are signs that President Anropov is thinking in a longer perspective and has his eye on the next party congress in 1986. He announced that a new party programme would be worked out to replace the one adopted under Khrishchev over 20 years and The Khrushchev over 20 years ago. For liking Yinglish, I should apologise?

The philosopher, at the podium in the lecture hall, is lecturing: 'Although repeated negation often implies affirmation, the obverse does not hold". A voice from the audience: "Yeah; Yeah." As we were saying before we were rudely interrupted by the election, Yinglish, or Yiddish English, as spoken conspicuously by New York Jews, is a rich source of vocabulary and idiom flowing into the central sea of

I was wrong to say that putting an adjective in front of its septence for emphasis or irony was a purely Yiddish idiom: Beautiful, she ain't. It is common practice in German also: Schon ist sie nicht; and in other Germanic languages, Danish, for example: Skon er hun ikke. This causes problems for translators, who often cannot avoid flattening out the PHS style in their versions. Judicious use of an italicized word can be helpful.

How to trade with wheeler-dealers

While Japan was producing automobiles the United States was producing lawyers. American lawyer production has more than doubled since 1960, with the result that there are now 612,000 on the market, or one lawyer for every 390 Americans On a per capita basis, this is 20 times the number of lawyers available in Japan.

These figures are the basis of my lawyer-for-cars proposal for solving our trade problem with the Japa-

As first proposed to the White House, my plan called for exporting one lawyer to Japan for every car Japan exports to the United States. The Japanese objected to this.

They argued that we would need to keep at least 200,000 lawyers for ourselves, leaving only 412,000 for

On a one-for-one basis, they noted. Japan would be permitted to ship us only 412,000 cars, which is far below the present export level. As I explained to the White House, the Japanese estimate was far off base. Since the United States could function very happily with no more than three dozen lawyers, we should be able to send Japan 611.964 lawyers by the end of the Under state department pressure however, we sought to please the Japanese by changing the car-to-lawyer ratio to a three-for-one swap. We would ship 611,964 lawyers. they would ship 1,835,892 cars in the present year. Moreover, we would change the ratio in future years, in view of the fact that after the initial shipment our exports would decline.

At present we produce only 35,000 new lawyers each year. We proposed annual shipments from these inventories of 34,998 new lawyers at an exchange rate of between 50 and 75 cars per lawyer.

At this stage the Japanese revealed that they had been toying with us. A letter from the Japanese Lawyer Import Commission said: We are dismayed to find that the 611,964 lawyers you propose to ship us are almost totally ignorant of the engineering and production skills necessary for the making of superior automobiles and highly sophisticated electronic machinery

If we would agree to put the lawyers through a 10-year retraining programme. Japan would be pre-pared to consider a deal. We do not believe this is an unreasonably long retraining period, they said, since our studies show that to an American lawyer 10 years virtually no time at all.

Horatio was here ... but not for long

This is Nelson's column, dedicated to the memory of the victor of Copenhagen, the Nile and Trafalgar, a man who can still stir an estate agent's heart 178 years after a French bullet struck him down on the deck of Victory.

Consider the following, from a press release issued by Goldenberg and Company, of Berkeley Square:

"Horario Lord Nelson's former home in New Bond Street has been acquired by the top Paris fashion house, Cacharel, Number 103 New Bond Street became Lord Nelson's home in 1798 and the property still has many unusual features dating from his residency, including sweeping staircases and porthole windows through which Lord Nelson was able to keep watch on his guests in the

For the exercise of poetic imagination, this beats the observation of an estate agent on my own property: "The garden has a rural air". (It has weeds and a tendency to tremble every time the Piccadilly Line sends a train into neighbouring King's Crossl.

It also knocks into a cocked hat the interesting intelligence, gleaned from my local paper last week, that Stoke Newington has been renamed "Islington borders".

Such writing is McGonagall to Milton by comparison. The clues are there in Messrs Goldenberg's prose, that happy picture of Nelson eavesdropping on his guests from his Habitat kitchen. The microwave is busy thawing a frozen deep-pie pizza. Ronnie Scott's are on the phone with complimentary tickets. A letter from Lady Hamilton stands indiscreetly by the avocado-stained food processor: "Dearest Horatio, Naples empty without you, weather raining cats and dogs, lots of Arabs in town. Miss you terribly, Love

No wonder our greatest sailor is turning over in his grave at the thought of his London pad being turned over to the fine-boned paws of a Paris fashion house. Or is he? A blue-and-white plaque outside Number 103 may announce that Nelson once lived there, but all is not as it seems. Nelson returned to not as it seems. Nelson returned to England in September 1797 after losing his arm attacking the mole at Santa Cruz, Tenerife. After a few days in Bath, he promptly went to Bond Street, not to 96, as the house which is now 103 was then numbered, but to 141.

"The lodging house kept by Mr Jones stood on the west side of the fashionable street, a little south of Grosvenor Street, and near enough to St George's, Hanover Square, for a wakeful man to hear the hours tolled from that modern classic building throughout the long night," records Carola Oman in Nelson.

Unfortunately, this building was demolished years ago. Its site is marked by a plaque erected by the Royal Society of Arts late last century Number 141 was Nelson's main London address during the winter of 1797/98, though he spent some time on country visits recuperating from his wound and kicking his beels waiting for a new

In early February of 1798, he returned to London to Goldenberg's property and stayed there until March 14 when he left for Portsmouth on the first leg of the journey which was to culminate in the Battle of the Nile. We can. therefore, say with some certainly that the most time Nelson ever. spent at Number 96 was about four weeks, hardly sufficient for him to have installed porthole windows in what was almost certainly, in any

Wherever Horatio's shade flits these days, it is unlikely to bearound the former shoe shop which

After his heroic death at Trafalgar, every lodging house in London where he had stayed - and there were plenty, thanks to the ad hoc nature of the admiral's domestic affairs - recorded the fact that he had once graced their sheets. The reason Number 96 - now 103 persists with this mild exaggeration today is that it is one of the few to Mr Stuart Goldenberg, a partner in the firm, tells me the Nelson connexion had nothing to do with Cacharel taking on the property which makes one wonder why the estate agents made such a fuss about it in the first place. The answer, of course, lies in the frisson one is supposed to feel over the idea of our great national hero's home being taken over by his old enemies.

Here again, I have to report that Goldenberg's have got it wrong.

Nelson may have fought the French, but he always had a liking for fine clothes. When one considers the state of his most obvious memorial in London, I suspect that even the admiral himself would prefer a frog to a pigeon.

epresentatives has just turned own a demand by President cagan for funding to produce a w generation of chemical eapons. Was it right, or was it TODE?

Only three days before, the ommittee on Disarmament id resumed its deliberations in eneva, with the prospects for a caty banning the production nd stockpiling of lethal gases oking brighter than they had or some time. Optimistic signals re not all that uncommon from ie CD, no doubt partly because lose attending feel obliged to rovide some justification for neir continued presence. Still, icre are now some signs that the oviet Union is prepared to ountenance some kind of onne inspection of its facilities nd a recent British initiative has ointed towards one possible av forward.

It is also worth recalling that ince the 1925 Geneva Protocol hich banned the use of such capons, they have not been eployed on a wide scale in artime. There have been reorts of more limited use from ime to time, but the examples ave not been significant in lobal terms. Although this may ave been out of respect for reaty obligations, it may also ave been out of mutual fear of ctaliation. The weakness of the 1925 rrotocol is that it did not rohibit production or stockpilng and allowed the big powers o interpret "use" as meaning 'first use." It followed that they ontinued to make the weapons ust in case someone else used hem first and they had to ctaliate. The result has been the continuing development of more perhaps using the argument over he United States House of lethal gases, improved means of verification to avoid committing delivery and an agreement not to use them which is less than satisfactory.

Only nuclear and microbiological weapons (which were banned a decade ago) produce a greater feeling of revulsion. This together with the fact that their military effectiveness in wartime remains largely unproved, helps to explain why they have been adopted on a massive scale by so few armies. The Americans stopped production in 1969, since when the Soviet Union has not only caught up but surpassed the US total by what is believed to be a considerable margin. The Russians moreover seem to assume on military exercises, that their own troops would use them - a practice which not unnaturally alarms generals in the West. With what, they ask, would we reply?

The Americans argue that their own stocks are not only smaller than those held by the Soviet Union, but need updating anyway. If agreement could be reached on a total ban, with international inspectors supervising the destruction of existing stocks, this discrepancy would be immaterial anyway. But would the Russians agree to such a ban after having invested so heavily and built up such a lead? The argument behind the US administration's demand for funding to resume production of chemical weapons - notably of the latest binary munitions - is precisely that Unless Congress shows itself willing to support such a programme, the Soviet Union will continue to stall and thus meanwhile retain and increase its alarming stockpile, itself to a treaty.

It would certainly be naive to expect a satisfactory agreement without some form of pressure. The same theory has been behind Western policies on nuclear arms control and is assuredly right

On the other hand there must be a limit to the bargaining power which the United States can hope to achieve. Not only would the public on both sides of the Atlantic recoil from a massive programme to build huge stocks of chemical mu-nitions in the USA, but the Soviets would simply step up their own development - and a new kind of arms race would begin with the Americans shouldering some of the blame.

One possible solution is for the United States to delay production simply until 1985 thus placing the Russians under the kind of threat not dissimilar to that posed by the Pershing-1 and cruise missiles in the INF talks. But the House of Representatives has turned down this option also.

· The difficulty in this anyway is that such a deadline commits oneself in advance and limits one's range of options. A more sensible course of action would be for Congress to release some of the money now - but for the administration to suspend the use of it until the prospects at the CD talks can be more clearly assessed - the United States would thus avoid the trap of appearing to be responsible for the breakdown of arms talks and the start of a new arms race: while evidence that it has the means and political will to react could be a sharp spur to progress

They believe that the basic job of RFE is to attack communism and support American policies. They want the people in charge of RFE to have more sympathy with emigre-groups. abortive Hungarian uprising of 1956, when the rebels received the false impression that the West would help them. Since then, and latterly under the guidance of Mr Brown, RFE has developed habits of reasonably careful and accurate reporting of east and west. Of course its basic aim is still to promote western interests by addressing the Soviet satellites. The fact that it is widely jammed hardly suggests that it has become too friendly. On the whole it has found that it is effective only if it is believed, and that it is believed only so long as it maintains standards of accuracy and balance.

The peoples of eastern Europe are more sophisticated and wellinformed than is sometimes supposed. Surveys by RFE confirm that listeners do not want to hear incitement and propaganda. They want accurate news and responsible comment. They are highly sensitive to propaganda because they live with it all the time. If RFE starts to give them a mirror image of their own distorted media they will switch off. The West would then have lost a valuable line to the ears of the east Europeans. Only the regimes of eastern Europe would gain. The best persuasion the West can offer is

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fairer system of representation

From Professor Edward Stamp

Sir, When one strips her letter (June 14) of all of its unnecessary persiflage, all Lady Trumpington manages to do is to indict the Alliance for putting common sense before obscure High Tory theory. It is true that, in the absence from the Revolution Settlement in 1689 of any proscriptions to the contrary, the Monarch retains the theoretical right to choose her own ministers (including the Prime Minister) and to refuse the Royal Assent to any piece of legislation. But it is manifestly absurd to assert, as Lady Trumpington does in her letter; that in practice this means that power flows down from the Throne and that the Constitution would be perverted if proportional representation were to be introduced into that part of the United Kingdom which does not have it already.

Lady Trumpington is not only being silly. If one takes her seriously she is also being dangerously provocative of people like Mr Arthur Scargill, by implying that we need to upset our Constitution and the relationship of the Crown to the people in order to make it possible to introduce proportional representation into Great Britain.

Is Lady Trumpington really arguing that the English, Scots and Welsh need to adopt Northern Irish tactics in order to get a fairer system of parliamentary representation? Yours faithfully, EDWARD STAMP,

Roxburghe House, Brettargh Drive, Haverbreaks,

From Mr Roger M. Bale Sir, The subject of electoral reform will obviously be a continuing debate over the coming parliamentary session. Another area for debate is perhaps how more than 114 million members of the Transport and General Workers' Union can declare for Neil Kinnock without even being consulted. Yours faithfully, R. M. BALE, Rocque Berg, St Clement. Jersey, Channel Islands. June 14.

Remarriage in church

From Mr and Mrs J. L. Cox Sir, We welcome the Rev Maurice Bartlett's forthright and com-passionate letter (June 10) on the marriage in church of divorcees.

Your Court page has disclosed that services of blessing are usual where there is a desire for the sacred element to be introduced after a civil wedding. The notion entertained by some Anglican clergy of making these services more acts of con-trition than of celebration seems to have been abandoned, thank God.

At one service recently two clergymen took part. We hope that there were flowers and music, too. In these circumstances it seems likely that couples will prefer a service of blessing to a church wedding that could only be sanctioned following a clerical inqui-sition which, however sensitively conducted, could be embarrassing humiliating and painful.

Dispensation with inquiry and udgment and acceptance in good faith of anyone who sincerely desires a church wedding seem to us more humane and consistent with the true meaning of Christ's Gospel, sensitively interpreted for the times in which we live it is most encourag-ing to know that at least one Anglican priest thinks along these

We cannot believe that Mr Bartlett stands alone. Yours faithfully. LEONARD COX. GLADYS COX. 7 Needwood Drive, Bebington, Wirral, Merseyside.

Cost of liberation

June 10.

From Professor Michael Howard Sir, Pace Mrs Weisskopf (June 13), Yugoslavia was liberated neither by the forces of Tito's resistance nor by the Anglo-American aid that was channelled to it. Though it is unfashionable to say so, it was liberated by Marshal Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army, which by the end of 1944 occupied about one third of Yugoslav territory while the German forces under Field Marshal von Weichs were conducting an orderly evacuation of the rest in order to protect a left flank laid bare by the collapse of Hungary and Romania. Heroic myths of liberation, whether in east Europe or west, are all very well; but they do not provide a very sound basis for military planning, either today or for the future. Yours faithfuly MICHAEL HOWARD.

Independence vital issue in Lords

From Mr Mark Steyn

Sir, Your leader, "Gradations of honour" (June 14), is as depressing as it is predictable. Almost all critics of the House of Lords assault it on ideological or philosophical grounds; whereas in practice the Upper Chamber has proved an admirably wise, sensible and responsible body (even the most ardent abolitionist would agree that it was right to throw out some of Mrs Thatcher's less considered and more mean-spirited proposals). The matter should end there, but since you take the view that the Lords need reform, perhaps you will permit me to make a few points.

The United Kingdom has a far more centralised system of governthan other senior Commonwealth countries, the United States or members of the EEC. And unfortunately the new House of Commons has, I believe, far fewer free-thinking and independent members than ever before: the party whip is supreme. It is therefore in denote of hecoming simple a righter danger of becoming simply a rubber stamp for the Government's de-cisions, with voting a mere for-mality. The independence of the Lords is, therefore, more important than ever.

By extending the range of life perrages, you extend further the Prime Minister's power. It would not be "gradations of honour", but gradations of patronage; a succession of meaningless viscounties and earldoms (why so modest, Sir? Why not a life principality?) to add to the already vast array of banbles in the Prime Minister's sack.

The hereditary system does at least have the advantage of bringing people into our legislative process who do not owe their position to the party machine. Those peers with no interest in politics take no part; those who do are refreshingly independent and unlike the Commons they are not rabidly ambitious, career politicians.

What you contemptuously dismiss as "recondite and punctilious debates" are intelligent and cogent discussions of the issues, without the empty rhetoric, party sloganising and dreary set-pieces of the Commons (the notion that all hereditary peers are Conservative is a fallacy: the Earl of Longford, Lord Kennet, the Duke of Devonshire and many others spring to mind).

Three years ago, you may recall, the Commons passed an iniquitous measure regarding school transport for children in rural areas. It was not the members for those rural constituencies who went to the aid of those children, but the oft-derided backwoodsmen of the Lords who voted down that measure. Would that the Commons had shown such

What you call "a dubious and controversial anomaly" is not, in my experience, seen that way by the public. Reform of the Lords is an obsession of politicians and the media. As with the Sovereign, as

Our Constitution has evolved pragmatically over the years. The danger now lies in the increasing ineffectiveness of the Commons. As 58 per cent of the electorate voted other than Conservative you would do well to remember, Sir, that the one place where the Government does not have an automatic majority is the House of Lords. Policy for jobs

From Sir John Colville Sir, Mr Geoffrey Tucker (June 10) hits an all too visible nail on the head in pointing out that the more successful we are technologically the fewer people will be employed. This is not, of course, just a British horror

I doubt, however, whether the appointment of an "overlord" to provide guidance is the appropriate solution. Overlords, except in wartime and in military matters, have not been sparkling successes, as Sir Winston had to admit after his 1951 experiment.

The parrot cry of "jobs, jobs, jobs" will get us nowhere. There are plenty of roads, hospitals and prisons to build, but a return to over-manning would be stark idiocy. There are, of course, always plenty

Sir, I share Mr Doughty's doubts (June 10) about the practice of paying house deposits to vendors to use. Although exceedingly rare, I have known deposits so paid become irrecoverable.

Monumental misery From Dr James Stevens Curl

Sir, In the The Times of today (June 10, earlier editions) Mr Nicholson-Lord's excellent article quoted the views of the National Association of Master Masons concerning design of churchyard memorials. I have been a lifelong student of ecclesiastical architecture and of the great wealth of funerary monuments with which this country is still endowed (despite the destructive efforts of many people who ought to know better). I am appalled by the standard of contemporary design in churchyards. Inappropriate white marble, green chips, lugubrious smirking angels, hearts, open books, bird baths, white kerbs, ghasily lettering, mawkish sentimentality and banality of the most depressing variety have added new terrors to death. Defenders of the horrors pernetrated in our ancient churchyards do themselves and our heritage no credit. Before the War there were many publications that illustrated dignified headstones, fine lettering, and designs by men of the calibre of Lutyens, Gill, and Blomfield, to name but three. The National Association of Master Masons could well encourage better standards of design and a more sensitive use of

With the advice, if necessary, of economists and sociologists, the three parties might consider, on an entirely non-partisan basis, how generations of unemployed school ers can best learn to make their leisure creative; for it seems undeniable that from now onwards as great an emphasis must be laid on leisure as on work. An informal committee might be established, representing all three parties, and embracing the TUC, the CBI, the churches, and the regions where unemployment is at the most pernicious and long-lasting level. The Government would, of course, submit the committee's proposals for discussion in Parliament and, if necessary, for legislation. I am, Sir, your obedient servant, JOHN COLVILLE, The Close, Broughton. Stockbridge Hampshire.

A proper use for PLR From Miss Brigid Brophy

Sir, The Swedish Parliament allocates a sum to be spent, in stated proportions, on two distinct functions: payment, as of right, for the service that authors give the public through libraries; and the creation of solidarity funds which award grants and pensions to authors according to merit and need.

In suggesting (June 14) that the writers' unions in Britain should emulate the Swedish unions by taking a slice of the tiny Public Lending Right fund and administer-ing it "for the benefit of the profession as a whole" Ms Marghanita Laski betrays that she has not read the PLR Act of 1979.

In Britain the sum allocated by Parliament to PLR can be spent only on PLR, which is a right, proportionate to the borrowings of each author's books, not an award proportionate to financial need for someone's assessment of literary value. The money can be administered only by the registrar of PLR and only in accordance with the labyrinthine rules and procedures devised by the Civil Service and approved by Parliament.

Grants for writers are in Britain the business of the Area Council the business of the Arts Council. They are now more needed than ever, yet now is the moment that the Arts Council has chosen to cut them down. Literature receives only about two per cent of the arts funding. Yet the Literature Department, advised by a panel under Ms Laski's chairmanship, has not always managed to spend even that.

And now Ms Laski wants the writers' unions to disembarrass her of the task of providing what she calls "relief for creative writers of almost all levels of ability" (it being well known that, where a creative art is concerned, a "level of ability" is a matter of taste, not measurement).

Done. If the Arts Council will hand over to the two writers' unions (the Writers' Guild of Great Britain and the Society of Authors) the sum it finds it so onerous to disburse the unions will spend it to better effect, with more adventurous taste, with less waste and more truly "for the benefit of the profession as a whole". Moreover, they will spend it all. They know how badly writers - and literature – need it. Yours truly.

Woodland census

June 14.

From Dr G. F. Peterken Sir, Your Environment Correspondent gave the wrong impression when he reported (June 7) that talks between the Nature Conservancy Council and the Forestry Commission about postwar changes in the failed. Talks did indeed take place at which a difference in interpretation was identified. The FC excluded the "devastated broadleaved woodland" recorded in 1947 because it contained no actual or potential hardwood timber. The NCC does count this category, because it is good wildlife habitat.

Further discussions will take place. When the FC census results are fully available, they will be compared with those of other surveys, and we will discuss the reasons for our differences in interpretation. Yours sincerely.

In terms of contemporary psychology, the doctrine of the Trinity and its pattern, present in man through the gift of charity, means that there is a genuice self-love. That self-love is not the same thing as ego-love or the selfishness which Paul calls "sin"; it is the fervent desire to achieve the total integration of the personality. In the older theological lan-guage this is dying to sin and becoming alive to God; it is what Paul means by "putting on

He was later president of the General Assembly at the United Nations in 1954.

Born on November 17, 1894, in the Frisian town of Hoeren veen, van Kleffens devoted practically the whole of his active life to diplomacy. In 1918 he obtained his doctorate in Law from the University of Leiden, and, after work at the League of Nations Secretariat. in 1922 he joined the Foreign Ministry. Seven years later he headed the department of diplomatic affairs. In 1939 for a short time he was Minister to of the few". Switzerland.

In August 1939, as Europe hovered on the brink of disaster and the Netherlands strove to maintain its traditional neutrality the need was felt for an experienced diplomat rather than a politician to take in hand the country,'s foreign affairs. The choice fell on van Kleffens who had no political affiliation. After escaping to London following the German invasion in May, 1940, he held the post through the war until March I.

1946. During this period he presided over a fundamental change of course in Dutch foreign policy. Although a convinced neutralist when he joined the cabinet after the German invasion, van Kleffens had no hesitation in wholeheartedly embracing the Allied cause, and in the course of the war he was to become one of the most outspoken advocates of the Atlantic Alliance.

He was one of the first Allied cabinet members to suggest that post-war security in Western Europe could best be guaranteed through some form of institutionalised cooperation with Britain, the United States and Canada. Van Kleffens was convinced that any post-war threat would come from the Soviet Union, and it was in an effort to support the more

This defiance of the United States was characteristic of van Kleffens in his role as champion of the rights of the smaller powers. He took strong exception to a leading article published in The Times on March 23, 1943, in which it was suggested that Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union should order Europe's post-war affairs. Two days later The Times published a letter from van Kleffens in which he repudiated such a conception saying "we cannot proclaim democracy and practise the rule

After relinquishing the port-folio of Foreign Affairs van Kleffens became the Netherlands representative to the United Nations, first in the Security Council and later in the Economic and Social Council, while retaining cabinet rank as Minister without Portfolio.

In July, 1947, he became Ambassador to Washington where he remained until 1950 when he was accorded the title of Minister of State, an honorary distinction awarded only to a handful of the country's most distinguished elderly statesmen. For the next six years van Kleffens was the Netherlands envoy to Lisbon where he was able to spend the final years of his life - and it was during that period that he was President of the nigth session of the United Nations General Assembly in 1954.

From 1956 to 1958 he headed the combined Netherlands representation to Nato and the OECD in Paris, and he ended his career once again in London from 1958 to 1967 as the representative of the European Coal and Steel Community,

A tall man he gave an impression at first of being stiff and formal, but beneath this exterior there was warmth and friendliness. He married in 1945 Margaret Helen Horstman.

The binding bears the insig-nia of the Nuremberg city library and it is thought to have been looted by the French General Andreossi during the Vapoleonic wars.

Andreessi is know to have looted extensively in the neigh-bourhood and the Nuremberg library has no record of when the woodcuts left its possession. The library was endowed by the Imhoff family, one of whose scions married the granddaughter of Willibald Pirckheimer, the humanist friend of Durer.

Record setters: Left, Durer's woodcut "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse", from the unique album which sold for £222,000 at Sotheby's yesterday. Right, John James Audubon's print, "Trumpeter Swan", which fetched £29,342 in New York on Thursday.

The album was in the Paris trade in the 1950s and appeared in a Kornfeld and Klipstein auction in Bern in 1968, when it sold for 144,000 Swiss francs, the equivalent of £44,000 at current exchange rates.

The German prints were especially strongly competed for, with Martin Schongauer's engraving, "Christ before Anns", selling for £10,780 (estimate £3,500-£5,000) to a Sotheby's have divided the set into two days of sales, with brought them £637,290 with every lot finding a buyer. This is not surprising, since Sotheby's, as auctioneers, do not like holding stock and on the rare occasions when they auction their own property they have little use for protective reserves.

The set of "The Birds of America" offered for sale belonged to one of the original subscribers from Philadelphia, probably Mrs Ford, whose name appears as number 22 on Audubon's final list. The following year she returned there to begin her cabaret career at the Boeuf-surle-toit and Le Grand Ecart, and to establish herself as a favourite of European cafe society of the Art Deco era.

Back in New York she appeared at a nightclub called the Royal Box, singing "Love for Sale", a Cole Porter number that had caused a scandal in The New Yorkers, which had just opened. When Irving Berlin, Monty Woolley and the producer of the show heard her, they asked if she would take the place of Kathryn Crawford, who was singing on Broadway.

Birth of a Nation (tomorrow, ITV, 9.30 pm) prefigures the death of a system. Personally, I think David Leland's screenplay about anarchy in a comprehensive school is premature with its obsequies and I question many of its assumptions. I do not believe, for example, that it is wrong to issume that a teacher has more knowledge than a pupil. I do not accept that the act of teaching is, in itself, dictatorial. And Ī most emphatically question the argument that with variations, provides one of the principle themes in Mr Leland's script, and ultimately leads to an explosion of hatred reminiscent of the storming of the Bastille: that, in some way, it is schools, and schools alone, that are guilty of the crimes of callousness and neglect of social

War (tomorrow, BBC 1. 10.05pm) is a fascinating one, and it is grippingly explored in David Jessel's report on the humanitarian role of the Red Cross in the continuing Afgha-nistan conflict. Essentially, the problem is one of observing strict political neutrality while at the same time performing duties - pleading for the life of a captured Soviet invader, or medical treatment of wounded Afghans, some of whom will return to the battle - which in themselves could be interpreted service in exposing, through the medium of drama, what he sees as dangerous flaws in the educational system of today worker's declaration that "we worker's declaration that "we be a service in exposing through the service in exposing through the medium of drama, what he sees as dangerous flaws in the second service in exposing through the medium of drama, what he sees as dangerous flaws in the second service in exposing through the medium of drama, what he sees as dangerous flaws in the second service in exposing the second service in the second that could cast a black shadow are not pro-Russian or pro-over the lives of the citizens of Afghan; we are pro-victims of

Radio

People who set out to adapt novels for radio inevitably risk their necks. How to translate the thing to a new medium without - as we put it so melodramtically - betraying the author's intentions? Strictly speaking, it can't be done: adaptation means first and foremost cutting - omitting what to the adapter seems inessential, but which the author certainly intended to be there. Secondly, it means substituting dialogue and sound (which the author didn't intend) for narrative (which he or she did).

What survives that process the original which stands up in its own right, but it won't be the original, which is what its devotees sometimes seem to tope. In fact as a devotee of Mary Renault's The King Must Die, which has just passed the second of eleven episodes (Sundays, repeating Fridays, secretly hope for of Michael Bakewell's treatment is something even more unreasonable namely that it will be the original plus, that to hear Theseus and company will

The question is whether he and the adapter will now begin to convey more of that extraordinary sense of myth brought to life which is so immediately powerful in the book. Sutcliffe) has added substantially to the very small number of landmarks in that area of broadcasting. Here on Radio 3 - which is at least semi-public -Hayman began by developing with useful illustration some ideas on the power of radio as a sightless medium, making the important point, which ought to be inscribed over every script editor's door, that its output of plays has always placed more persuasive scenes of violent emphasis on its ability to action, and his direction appicture what is unstageable. than on its other ability to dramatize the unpicturable.

In the second programme he examined the effect of radio drama, where attentiveness to the word is everything, on the relationship of audiences to the stage play, suggesting that listening has made us more tolerant of obscurity and ambiguity. These were lucid, thoughtful, unfussy programmes and I hope there will be more like them to look at other areas of creative radio

Hickman, sitting with four justices at Dudley Crown Court, who dismissed the applicants' appeal against the refusal by the Wolverhampton Justices to make a provisional grant of a justices' on-licence in respect of premises at Moreton School. His Lordship further granted an order of mandamus directing the crown court to continue the hearing of the icants' appeal.

The 1964 Act provides by section 6(1); "Where licensing justices are satisfied, on application made by a person interested in any premises which are - (a) about to be constructed or in the course of construction for the purpose of being used as a house for the sale of intoxicating liquor... they may make a provisional grant of ... a licence for those premises."

that Moreton School was owned and administered by Wolverhampton Metropolitan Borough Council which employed the applicants as beadmaster and deputy headmaster In 1981 a community block was built containing, among other facilities, a refreshment area which was designed to include a licensed bat. The local education committee miended the school to be used by local community organizations, and Permission was given to the applicants by the finance and general purposes committee and the management committee of the community association to apply for a justices' on-licence. That was refused by the justices.

On appeal to the crown court the preliminary point was taken that the headmaster and his deputy had no locus standi to apply for such a licence, not being "persons interested in any premises" within the meaning of section 6(1) of the 1964 meaning of section 6(1) of the 1964 Act. The crown court interpreted that section as requiring that the applicants held a legal or equitable interest in the land in the property

The nearest authority was Pennine Raceway Ltd v Kirklees Metropolitan Council (The Times, June 9, 1982; [1983] QB 382) which, in dealing with the meaning of the words "a person interested in the land" under section 164(1) of the Town and Country Planning Act 1971, held that the phrase was wide enough to include a person granted a right to use land for a permitted purpose, citing Maxwell on In terpretation of Statutes (12th edition, 1969, p28); "The first and most elementary rule of construction is that it is to be assumed that the words and phrases of technical legislation are used in their technical and otherwise in their ordinary meaning . . .". The court went on to say that as it was not dealing with a conveyancing statute the ordinary meaning of the words should be

There was no reason here to import into the word "interest" a requirement that such interest be a legal or equitable one in the special property sense. In the ordinary sense of the word the headmaster and his deputy were persons interested in the premises. The justices should view each application in the light of its own particular circumstances. The decision of the crown court would be quashed and an order of mandamus anted directing it to continue the hearing of the appeal.

Burning rubbish a 'process'

with smoke emanating

Sheffield City Council v A. D. H. Demolition Ltd Before Lord Justice Griffiths and Mr Justice Taylor

Mr Justice Taylor
[Judgment delivered June 9]
A vacant demolition site where the burning of rubbish was carried out was capable of being "premises
... on which matter is burnt in connexion with an industrial or trade process" within section 1(5) of the Clean Air Act 1968, and the burning of rubbish was a "process" within the subsection applying the ordinary use of the word.

The Queen's Bench Divisional Court so held in allowing an appeal by way of case stated by Sheffield City Council against a decision of the Sheffield Justices who dismissed an information laid against A. D. H.
Demolition Ltd alleging an offence of being the occupier of premises from which dark smoke was emitted contrary to section 1 of the 1968

The 1968 Act provides by section 1; "(1)... dark smoke shall not be emitted from any industrial or trade premises and, if on any day dark smoke is so emitted the occupier of the premises... shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard

"(5) In this section 'industrial or trade premises' means premises used for any industrial or trade purposes or premises not so used on which matter is burnt in connexion with any industrial or trade Mr Martin Bethel, QC and Mr

William Phillips for the council; Mr Oliver Thorold for the company.

LORD JUSTICE GRIFFITHS said that the justices had heard an information laid against the company, who were demolition contractors, that they were occupiers of premises at 166-174 Manvers Road, Sheffield, from which dark smoke was emitted contrary to section 1 of the Clean Air Act 1968.
There had been five houses on the site, but they had been demolished and a bonfire lit to burn rubbish which covered the space of three of those houses. The justices were entitled to conclude that the smoke was dark smoke within the meaning of section 1 on the evidence of an environmental health officer who held a diploma in air pollution and had observed the smoke.

There was ample authority to support the proposition that the site was "premises" within the Act in spite of the absence of buildings or structures. The justices had erred in holding to the contrary.

That conclusion was fortified by the fact that the provisions of the Clean Air Act 1956 specifically dealt buildings. That the 1968 Act did not do so was to be taken as an indication of Parliament's intention wider and more general application. The company's submission that there was insufficient continuity of activity in the burning of rubbish by means of a bonfire on the site to constitute a "process" within the meaning of section 1(5) of the Act could not be upheld could not be upheld. "Process" in this context should be given its ordinary meaning, and it was a natural usage of the word to refer to a "process" of demolition. The justices had erred in attributing to the words "industrial or trade process" a meaning denoting a connexion with manufacturing or shops. The company were burning lition which was a trade process within the second limb of section h(5) of the Act. Parliament had by means of the Clean Air (Emission of Dark Smoke) (Exemption) Regulations (SI 1969 No 1263) made provisions for exemption under certain circumstances from section 1 of the Act for building contractors burning rubbish. It was conceded that demolition work came within the scope of the regulations. The appeal would be allowed and the case remitted to the justices with a direction to rehear the case. Mr Justice Taylor agreed.

continued to draw nearer their year's high yesterday as the market became convinced that a bid for the group was on the cards. Last night, they closed 8p higher at 248p - for a sain on the week of around 30p - with Mr Jeffrey Sterling's Town & City Properties and Mr Gerald Ronson's Heron Corporation tipped as the most likely hidders. At this level a bid would value BET at £450m.

Town & City denied this week that is had been buying the shares. It already holds 4 per cent of the equity, but is considered by some too small to make a full scale bid.

Meanwhile. Mr Ronson was unavailable for comment BET said it had no reason to believe was on the way and put the share price flurry down to pure speculation.

BET bid this year for the down at 714.1 - a rise on the minority of Rediffusion amounting to 36 per cent for which it paid £120m. Many observers said this was intended to deter as The Times reported yesterpreditors.

Shares of Spear & Jackson, the garden tool manufacturer, rose 4p to 104p amid talk of a bid from the Dowable consortium. Broker Anderson & Co is reckoned to have bought around 18 per cent of the equity on behalf of clients, but it said it was unable to comment.

The rest of the equity ended the general election account on taking profits after a strong run which has seen the equity market scale new heights. The FT Index ended the day 1.6

$239m loan for Hungary

The World Bank, assisting Hungary for the first time, vesterday approved two 15-year loans totalling $239.4m (£157m) for grain storage and energy conservation projects. The bank said a $130.4m loan would help finance grain storage and mechanization programmes. A $309.6m plan to substitute cheaper fuels for more expensive petroleum products to reduce energy consumption would receive a $109m loan.

Both World Bank loans would include a three-year grace period and have annual interest rates linked to the cost of borrowing as well as minor yearly service charges.

The Dow Jones industrial iverage was off 2.10 to 1,246.21 in early active trading yesterday.

The average has risen 62.30 in the past six sessions and 471.33 since August 12. Several analysts predict the Dow will hit 1.300 soon.

Others are beginning to wonder if the market has entered a new phase. The answer is probably not. At least not yet.

That is the opinion of some of Wall Street's leading analysts. They believe the signs indicate Wall Street is still in the first phase of a nearly classic built market.

Analysts say bull markets tend to develop three phases each marked by a sharp advance followed by a major downward correction. Some say the first stage is marked by an "I don't believe it" attitude among

"We're still in the 'I-don'tbelleve-it' stage," says Mr William Raftery, an analyst with Smith Barney Harris Upham.

When a correction comes the per cent, Mr Raftery says. He points out however, that "we may not get such a correction" between the first two legs. This may not be like the 1965 bull market but instead more like the bull market that began in 1949 and continued to 1962. before the first real crack. Rules

Tough line on loan to Venezuela

Caracas, (Reuter) - Venezuela'a advisory bank com-mittee is prepared to consider the Government's rescheduling request if it secures a compensa-tory financing facility from the International Monetary Fund.

The committee, chaired by Chase Manhattan Corporation, sent a telex this week to Venezuela's 453 bank creditors on the result of last week's meeting in New York with Senor Arturo Sosa, finance

At that meeting, Senor Sosa $16.3bn (£10.6bn) of 1983 and 1984 maturities and announced his plan to draw $1.1bn from compensatory financing

The banks mande it clear that the rescheduling plan would not be considered unless Venezuela accepted stiff IMF conditionality. Reaction to Senor Sosa's outline economic programme, accompanying the proposal, was lukewarm and clarification was sought on targets and the period of an adjustment plan.

Among other aspects, banks wanted to know the government's programme for unifying the present three-tier exchange rate system.

The meeting almost broke up over differences on IMF condi-tionality, but banks later agreed to negotiate a rescheduling on the understanding that a compensatory financing facility credit would have economic strings attached.

These conditions will be discussed when an IMF mission arrives in Caracas next month. and are expected to be stricter than previous credits under this facility.

The financing facility has until now been available with relatively soft terms, a factor which concerned the banks.

Games maker's recovery attracts second takeover offer Waddington fights for independence

as Maxwell launches £13m bid

Waddington, the Monopoly and Cluedo games maker took a new turn yesterday as Mr Robert Maxwell, the millionaire publisher, launced a £13m takeover bid.

It rivals an £11m offer made last month by Norton Opax, the small lottery ticket printing group. Waddington rejected the bid and last night said it would also fight to stay independent of Mr. Maxwell's British Printing & Communications Corporation empire, now Europe's largest printing group. Mr Victor Watson, Wadding-ton's chairman, said: "We have told Mr Maxwell that we think it is in the best interests of our shareholders to stay indepen-dent. We've taken all the harsh decisions about the business and now we are seeing the results come through to profit."

City Comment,

Laying to rest an old wives' tale

Whatever else people may say about the stock market, no one can deny that it is resilient. Next week, though share prices have slipped a little since the election, there will be a positive flood of new issues. At least three companies are seeking a full listing on the stock market proper, and as many again hope to get a price for their shares on the Unlisted Securities Market.

Of the two developments the most significant is the increasing momentum of the companies seeking a full listing. This has always been a seasonal business. It is almost part of stock market folklore that when prices are low the new issue business dries up because no entrepreneur, having gone through the pain of building up a company, wants to sell it when he thinks he will get a bad price.

It is almost as much part of the folklore that every time the business does dry up people say is will never revive again. This feeling had become even more marked with the advent of the Unlisted Securities Market, with its less onerous requirements making it easier for young companies with short profit records to get recognition. It was thought that the USM gave companies most of the benefits of going public, with substantially fewer of the responsibilities. So why bother with a full quote? It is therefore heartening to see, as will be confirmed next week, that the main stock market is still attractive. New issues are good for everyone - they generate investor interest because people feel they are getting in at the ground floor. They obviously help the brokers who reap their substantial rewards in fees. It has to be admitted that they benefit newspapers because they carry the prospectus advertising. But most of all, they are a tangible recognition = success for those who have built up the companies are coming to mar ket. The more new issues there are the more people might be tempted to start their own businesses and the more vital will be the economy as a result.

CHLORIDE RELATIVE TO FTA ALL-SHARE INDEX JUL AUG SEP OCT NOV DEC JAN FEB MARIAPR MAY JUN Chloride struggles to

Year to 31:3:82

Share price 24p

By Michael Prest

Chloride, of which Sir Michael Edwardes is once again chairman, struggled against a depressed battery market to make pretax profits of £200,000 for the year to the end of March. But while this was an improvement of £2.6m in its fortunes, no dividend has been declared for the third successive year.

The arrears on the convertible preference shares now amount to £14.2m, which analysts point out will make it all the more difficult for Chloride to achieve attributable profits. The attributable loss fell by £2.4m to £9.4m The shares gained ip to 24p, where they par value.

Chloride prides itself on offering the widest and most technologically advanced range batteries. It is placing much faith on a range to be launched in Britain within the next 12 months under the tradename of "Torquestarter". The range has been marketed successfully in Australia, South Africa and the United States.

But the company also admits that the British battery market is showing few signs of starting up, although the decline may have been arrested. So the emphasis has been on cost savines and divestments. The company's British workforce has been slashed in recent years from 11,000 to 5,000 and disposals last year brought in £18.9m gross.

At the same time, however. Chloride is hinting that it could regain some of the original equipment sales to BL which Michael was chairman of the car manufacturer. Chloride is also talking to other British and continental vehicle makers.

But despite the European operations turning round from operating profit, total sales last year fell. There was, however, an improvement in the financial position. Divestments helped to reduce borrowings by £9.9m to £84.5m. Investors' Notebook, page 18

Pound slips in quiet trading

This week the FT Ordinary Index touched a record 725, dishing the pundits who pre-dicted that shares would fall once Mrs Thatcher was reurned safely to power.

Unit Trust investors have had a good run for their money in the last year, Many will be wondering if they should cash in their winnings, stay in the game or switch their portfolios tround. Can there be a lot of team left in a United Kingdom stock market that has risen by nearly 30 per cent in the last 12 months, or indeed in a United states market where the Dow Jones is up from 750 to 1,200 since last August?

Audrey Head of Hill Samuel believes unit holders should keep their investments at home now under way in the British economy offers the best prosects. "I believe strongly in the UK equity market at the moment", she said. "It may not rise tremendously in the next couple of months but it looks good value compared with Japan and the US, both of which I consider over-valued."

Does it make sense to invest in NORTH AMERICA?

FT 18/6/83

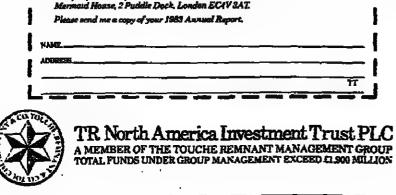

Our figures say so.

In April 1982 the shareholders at TR North America Investment Trust passed a Resolution to change our policy to "that of investing predominantly in North American securities". By December of that year almost 80% was invested there.

Was it a wise move? Our share price appreciation speaks for itself: plus almost 75% at 31st March 1983. Of course, asset values and earnings were favourably affected by the movement in the dollar sterling exchange rate, and this may not happen again. However, what will continue is the dedicated search for investments in companies which are lean, undervalued and in the forefront of the industries of today and tomorrow, We believe that the North American stock markets continue to offer great potential. If you would like to know more about us, ask for a copy of our just-published Annual Report.

Covenant kit

School, fees are a problem for all but the school nees are a problem for all but the very rich. The cost can be reduced by as much as 30 per cent if grandparents or goodparents can be persuaded to help out with a deed of covenant. But the difficulty in persuading grand parents to make the trip to the family solicitor (assuming the family solicitor knows how to prepare a deed of covenant) is often the stumbling block.

Help is at band in the form of a Do-ityourself Deed of Covenant kit. It contains two types of covenant form. One is written "in trust" for grandparents or other relatives or friends wanting to covenant money to a child under 18. The other is a direct covenant for parents wanting to covenant money to a student

FREE BANKING AND INTEREST

MONEYLINK is a new concept in personal finance. It results from an agreement between Standard Chartered, Britain's fifth largest bank with assets of more than £24,000 million, and Bristol & West, one of Britain's leading building societies with assets in excess of £1,300 million. Jogether, we can offer all the advantages of a complete current account service plus attractive interest on savings and a wide range of important extra benefits.

Most banks offer charge-free banking to personal customers keeping a substantial minimum credit balance in their current accounts—but they don't pay interest on those funds.

Building Societies, on the other hand do offer good interest-but usually without a full cheque-book service.

Now you can enjoy the best of both worlds - with MONEYLINK:

Cheque-books, cheque guarantee cards for eligible customers, standing order and direct debit facilities, and regular statements are all part of the new service - free of charge unless you overdraw. Other convenient services will soon be added.

What's more, 'MONEYLINK' customers enjoy access to all services through more than 150 Bristol & West branches, open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every weekday and on Saturday mornings too, when most banks are closed.

represents a better and much less costly way to handle personal finances and opens up a new world of financial flexibility.

INVEST IN JAPAN'S SMALLER COMPANIES BEFORE THEY REALLY CROW

Japan has an unsurpassed track-record for capitalising on

In the 1960s and 1970s big was mass production companies —like Sony, Honda and Nippon

Smaller, mainly unknown, entrepreneurial companies are using technology to improve the quality of existing products and develop new on Amongst these are the companies that we believe will forge ahead and become the household names of tomorrow.

The Second Section opportunity

Alert to these changes, the Japanese authorities are acting to make it easier for such companies to raise capital through a stock exchange listing, making it easier for investors to capitalise on their success. Most smaller companies are listed on the Second Section of the Tokyo Stock Exchange. Back in January 1968 the indices for the First and Second Sections started equal at 100. Today the Second Section has forged to 1148 leaving the First Section standing at 641.

Save & Prosper believe that the Second Section has only begun to show its paces. Hence we're now launching Japan Smaller Companies Fund, the first U.K. authorised unit trust to

The Fund is a means of adding a new dimension to an existing portfolio, or to complement a holding in Japan

How to invest

To invest, complete and return the coupon together with your cheque. Units in the Fund are offered at a fixed price of 50p until 8th July 1983. Given the likelihood of a substantial investment in companies at an early stage of development and not expected to pay dividends, the Fund's estimated gross starting yield is nil. It is quite possible that in some years there will be no distribution.

Initial Offer of Capital Growth Shares

This Prospectus is for the first offer for subscription for Participating C and D Shares ("Capital Growth Shares") in the Vanbrugh Currency Fund. The Capital Growth Shares are a new type of share in the Fund and are being issued in respect of subscriptions received on or before Wednesday 6th July, 1983 at a fixed price of £1 for each C Capital Growth Share and £100 for each D Capital Growth Share. Investment in foreign currencies will begin on Thursday 7th July, 1983 and until that time the assets attributable to the Capital Growth Shares will be held in interest-earning sterling

Apart from their nominal values, the C and D Shares are identical in all respects and the assets relating to them ("the Capital Growth Assets") will be aggregated to form a fund which will be aggregated from the assets ("the Income Assets") which relate to the existing A and B "Income" shares. The objective for the Capital Growth Shares will be to maximise the value of the Capital Growth Assets in terms of certing by taking advantage of changes in the relative values of leading world currencies and by accomulating as capital any income accruing to those assets.

Accordingly, it is the present intention of the Directors of the Fund not to recommend the payment of dividends in respect of the Capital Growth Shares. Investors requiring a regular income from shares in the Fund should subscribe for the A and B Shares the prospectus for which is available from the Managers.

Growth Prospects

In view of the volatility of exchange rates and interest rates, the Directors can make no forecast for the performance of the Capital Growth Shares. As at 24th April 1983, the gross rate of return on an Income Share purchased on the date of first issue at £1 (inclusive of initial charge) assuming reinvestment of all ome without tax was 45.83 per cent, representing an annual rate of 20.76 per cent. Past performance he Fund, however, may not be taken as an indication of what future performance of the Capital Growth ares might he. Investors are reminded that the value of Shares in the Fund may go down as well as up.

Investing in Foreign Currencies

During the 1970's, against the background of an extremely difficult economic climate, many investors preferred the salery of bank deposits and similar investments to the greater risks associated with the highly volatile equity and government bond markets. However, investing capital in deposits denominated in only one currency involves a vulnerability to weakness and inflation in that currency. The result is that both capital and income are liable to depreciate in value. Spreading this risk was not simple because exchange counts in force at the time caused significant difficulties for investors wishing to diversify their investments into overreas currencies. The situation changed when Exchange Controls were removed in 1979. UK resident investors now have the opportunity to invest in bank deposits in overseas currencies throughout the world. Rates of interest payable on these currencies are, from time to time, higher than those payable on sterling deposits (see the following table) and furthermore, fluctuations in exchange rates may create gains or lower between currencies. The combination of these factors may enable investors to obtain a degree of capital protection

The Fund is designed for investors who wish to invest in leading world currencies but who do not have the resources to select and manage their own foreign currency deposits. The Fund as presently constituted by the Income Assets is a diversified and actively managed portfolio of bank deposits denominated in various currencies. In future, when managing the Capital Growth Assets, the Managers will select investments in what they consider to be the stronger currencies. They will also which investments between currencies when necessary in order to meet the objective for the Capital Growth Shares stated above.

The Fund generally is able to earn higher rates of interest than those obtainable on bank deposits by individuals, and it is able to invest in money market instruments which are not normally available to private investors. Large investors such as the Fund can obtain substantially higher rates of interest than those earned on relatively small bank deposits. This advantage is illustrated by the table below which compares the rates of interest obtainable on a seven-day notice bank deposit account on 25th April 1983. Furthermore, the Fund is able to benefit from exceptionally low dealing expenses largely unavailable to private individuals.

Structure of the Fund

The Fund is an open-ended company incorporated in Jersey. Channel Islands on 10th April 1981. There are two classes of Capital Growth Shares. Participating C Shares are of ip nominal value each and Participating D Shares are of £1 nominal value each, with minimum initial subscription levels of £1.000 and £100,000 respectively. Application for listing the Capital Growth Shares on The Stock Exchange Official List has been made.

There are also two classes of Income Shares. Participating Redeemable Preference A Shares ("Participating A Shares") of Income income the usual means of investment for those requiring income from their Shares and the minimum initial investment is £1,000. Participating Redeemable Preference B Shares "Participating B Shares" of £1 nominal value each, although available to Individual investors, are incended primarily for institutional and corporate investors and are subject to a minimum initial subscription level of £100,000. Participating A and B Shares have been admitted to The Stock Exchange Official List. Unless stated otherwise the reference to "Participating Share" elsewhere in this Prospectus Includes Participating A Shares, Participating B Shares. Participating C Shares and Participating D Shares.

The capital structure of the Fund allows it to issue and redsem Capital Growth Shares at prices based way to a mutual fund or unit trust. Capital Growth Shares are freely transferable and are redeemable by the Fond on the basis of the trust wake of the Capital Growth Assets on regular subscription days. The redemption value of Capital Growth Shares is determined by the value of the Fund's investments attributable to the classes of their involved. The value of these investments in terms of sterling is subject to fluctuations in exchange rates.

Investments of the Fund The assets of the Fund are normally held in bank deposits in major overseas currencies and sterling. The average term of these investments is normally six months or less so that the risk of capital losses through a rise in interest rates is minimised. The Fund may also from time to time invest in short term (up to six months) and longer dated intoney market instruments. The main types of money market instrument likely to be held include Certificates of Deposit, Floating Rate Certificates of Deposit, Floating Rate Notes and short dated Bonds. The distribution of the assets of the Fund between different currencies and the and short dated Bonds. The distribution of the assets of the Fund between directine currences and the holdings in particular currencies are changed from time to time with a view to taking advantage of foreign exchange opportunities as they arise. To reduce the risk arising from changes in the exchange rate of a particular overseas currency against sterling, the Fund's holdings are balanced between major world currencies but it should be appreciated that foreign exchange rates are volatile. The primary countries in which the Fund's investments may be placed are Japan, USA, UK and West Germany, although investments may be made in other countries from time to time including Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, Holland, Hong Kong, Singapore and Switzerland.

In addition to any gains the Fund achieves as a result of movements in exchange rates, there is income generated by interest payable on the deposits themselves. Although the rates of interest payable on securities in various currencies are of major importance in the selection of the investments, the general level of interest rates throughout the world varies substantially. The level of income the Fund receives is therefore volatile and is also affected by fluctuating exchange rates.

Holders of Income Sharer resident in the United Kingdom are, subject to their personal circumstances, liable to United Kingdom income tax in respect of dividends or other income distributed by the Fund, and may be liable to Capital Gains Tax in respect of gains urising from the disposal or redemption of shares.

Holders of Capital Growth Shares resident in the United Kingdom may be liable to Capital Gains Tax in respect of gains arising from the disposal or redemption of shares, depending on the extent of the gain and the various reliefs that may be smallable from time to time. The attention of prospective investors in the Fund is drawn particularly to the Section headed

Conversion between types of Share

Income of the Fund

As the Capital Growth Shares and the Income Shares relate to two segregated funds of assets, conversion between the two types of Share will be effected by a redemption of Shares of one type and subscription for Shares of the other type with the proceeds of redemption. This procedure may constitute a disposal and acquisition of assets for UK capital gains tax purposes. On conversion of Participating A Shares an amount will be paid by the Managers so that the number of Participating C Shares subscribed for is rounded up to the next whole number. This amount will be subsequently reimbursed to the Managers from the Capital Growth Assets. Capital Values

The Fund does not distribute by way of dividend capital profits arising from fluctuations in exchange rates. Changes in the value of the Fund's investments for the time being by reason of fluctuations in exchange rates are reflected in the subscription and redemption prices of the Participating Shares even though profits or losses may not at that stage have been realised.

It must be recognised that whereas gains (in terms of sterling) may be made through investing in foreign currencies, there is also the risk of losses. The purchase of Capital Growth Shares in the Fund should therefore form only part of an individual's diversified portfolio. The Fund's Managers and Investment Advisers

The Fund has entered into an agreement with Vanbrugh Fund Management International Limited ("the Managers") for the management of the Fund's portfolio of investments. The Managers are a wholly-owned subsidiary of Vanbrugh Life Assurance Limited which is itself a wholly-owned subsidiary of Prudential Corporation p.l.c., the parent company of the Prodential Group. Another Prudential Group Company, Prudential Portfolio Managers Limited ("the Investment Advisers") acts as investment adviser to the Managers, using the fund managers and economists in the Investment Department of The Prudential Assurance Company Limited ("the Prudential"). The Prudential is the UK's largest corporate investment institution and has substantial experience in a wide range of financial markets. Overseas investment managed by Prudential Group companies exceed £10,000,000,000 and through its association with the Prudential is the Fund has access to the experience and advice of stockbrokers and bankers chroughout the world.

In the lap of the Gods

There is something remarkably and peculiarly English about the passion for sitting on damp seats watching open-air drama: the Scots may have their interminable Edinburgh Military Tatton and the Welsh their tary Tattoo and the Welsh their inevitable Eistedfodds, but only the English have mastered the art of being truly uncomfortable while facing up to culture. No other nation in the world, given our average summer rainfall you could book the theatre for our average summer rainfall and the flight paths of jets into Heathrow, would have con-structed the Open Air Theatre in Regent's Park or the school amphitheatre at Bradfield where parents, already shell-Operatic Society. shocked by the fees, are further

To recap, briefly: in 1921 Miss Cade, a lady who had always seemed to me to have face known as the Minack: atop it she built a house and, 10 years later, a theatre.

Long before Stratford or Chichester or Pitlochry became established on the summer festival calendars, the Minack was offering amateur and professional companies alike the chance to play King Lear on a storm-swept battlement which. had been constructed largely by hauling rocks up from the beach below. Indeed the cook had down the road. But, in the end, all memories when I came on for only the of open-air theatres tend to revolve around Robert Atkins who ran the Regent's Park playhouse from the 1930s until well into the 1950s. Like Wolfit, was one of those legendary pre-war actor managers who were forced to tour while Olivier and Gielgud were tours de force: he had indeed once been a director of the Stratford theatre, and when dismissed by that theatre's board of governors, most of whom came from the brewing family which had always the Shakespeare Theatre, was asked if he had any parting words of wisdom. "Yes", he replied, proceeding to express his opinon that: "Flowers' beer is piss".

On another occasion he fell foul of the Vicar of Stratford, largely because of his somewhat uninhibited use of the English language. "Can you give me",

Atkins was heard booming at the unfortunate cleric, "one single sodding reason why I shouldn't read your bloody lesson on Sunday?" By the time he got to Regent's Park Atkins had mellowed,

The prompter, situated in a bush somewhere stage left, had failed to notice the missing rustic and assuming that Atkins had, not for the first time, forgotten his opening line, began to hiss from the wings "Are we all met?"

As the hissing grew louder, Atkins could stand it no longer: dancing his way to the prompt side he hissed back: "No we are bloody not all met. If we bloody were all met we wouldn't now be doing this bloody stupid century. dance, would we?"

The sky's the limit for open-air shows

Summer programmes of open-air theatre are under way all over the country. Many of these performances are by touring companies playing engagements of only one, two or three nights, so it is important to make a note in your diary now if you want to be sure of catching them on their creatic progress. The Mikron Theatre, for example, is touring the Midlands and the north of England by canal narrowboat until September.

Michael Ratcliffe visits Stockholm and finds a fascinating blend of architectural styles by world wars, which means that most things stand where they stood in 1940 and 1914. Apart from two vile errors of recent planning - an attempt to Manhattanize the shopping district and a motorway cutting the Old Town in two - selfdestruction is comparatively slight and enemy action, notwithstanding recent occasions.

This is not only a joy in itself, but offers countless reflections of cities elsewhere: of Berlin, in the kind of plump, Torte-style corners that once marked the intersections of Kurfürstendamm; of Vienna, at the Royal Dramatic Theatre, where everything down to the box office and the loos preserves a decorous Secessionist paganism such as not even the Viennese themselves ever enjoyed; of Parisian art nouveau in the Operakallaren and Opera Bar, of Venice and Leningrad when-ever stone, brick, light and water meet. The astonishing

City Hall (1923) not only alludes to the splendour of San Marco and Byzantium but to the star and sickle moon of the Sublime Porte.

Two of the best views of the city are from the Western bridge, from which the medieval centre sits like a perfect toy between fresh water and sea; and from the cliffs of Skinvikksbergen on Söder, Stockholm's other island - Giudecca, Brooklyn Heights and Left Bank in one. From Söder, at your feet an enormous brewery turned dance centre, the panorama hits you head-on.

The architectural diversity of Stockholm excited and surprised me more than any other single feature during my first visit at the beginning of May – as a living museum of twentieth-century design alone it is exceptional - and as nobodyhad prepared me for this I mention it first. No single building is worth three stars, but the ensemble is outstanding and the manner in which spires. campaniles, cupolas, domes and facades mimic; complement and answer one another all over the city is a delight.

Sober and fantastic, serious and eccentric, mannerly and disruptive: the buildings are as contradictory and unclassifiable as the people themselves.

This genius - no visitor can fail to be aware of it on his first summer when it arrives and of the need to perpetuate its memory and secure its return during the rest of the year. Alighting at Montego Bay airport, the traveller is quickly made aware of his own importance in the present Jamaican scheme of things. "Tourism -Let's Put Our Hearts Into It": the massive billboard is not aimed at him, but its message is immediately of some reassurance to those with a knowledge of recent maybem.

Edward Seaga, the pro-Western prime minister now in his third year of office, may not be to every political taste, but the change that has come over Jamaica since he replaced his Castro-fancying predecessor is unmistakable, not least in the supermarkets, whose shelves are now a brimming contrast to the desolate aspect they presented during the desperate, bankrupt last years of the Manley regime. No longer does the tourist have to pack his own soap and toothpaste.

'Smile, Jamaica", Bob Marley urged in song when times were leanest; on the surface, at least, the late reggae master's wish is being fulfilled. Three years ago, no one in his right mind would have attempted the walk from Kingston's harbour front up Orange Street in search of the shops - Prince Buster's, loe Gibbs's, Tuff Gong - selling hard-core reggae records; now-adays, the lurching buses, the kamikaze moped pilots, the sidewalk debris and the numb-ing crash of reggae merely provide the foreground to a reasonably comfortable stroll.

Kingston's urban jungle will never be attractive in standard brochure terms, but it should be experienced by anyone interested in more than the luxury vacations of the North Coas Only voyeurs, of course, would want to peer into the continuing poverty of Trench Town's teeming hovels; otherwise, the response of the city's one million people (almost half of the island's total population) to Scaga's approach has reopened.

Talks in Tokyo between the Japanese "big four", Panasonic, JVC, Sony and Hitachi, and Philips from Europe, have produced agreement on an 8mm video. It will be about the same size as an audio cassette and gives 60 minutes' recording

With such specifications the new system would not compete with existing formats, with their longer playing times, and the emphasis could be more on linking up with a video camera than recording and playing programme material. Yet the way does seem clear for the VHS, Betamax and V2000 systems to be superseded eventually by a design that vould enable the same cassettes to be played on virtually any make of video recorder, with benefits both for the industry and the consumer.

Of the three current formats, VHS is generally the most expensive yet by far the most popular, V2000 is technically the best, yet trails well behind the other two on sales; and Betamax comes somewhere in

The success of VHS, which was developed by JVC, lies partly in an agreement with the Thorn EMI group, which owns big television-rental chains such as Radio Rentals, DER and Multibroadcast. Two-thirds of recorders are rented, rather than bought, and most of these are in the VHS format. Because VHS has the domi-mant share of the hardware market, estimated at 60 to 65 per cent, video dealers tend to carry larger stocks of prerecorded cassettes for VHS than for the other formats. This is why newcomers to video tend to choose VHS, and so the domination is self-perpetuating. Betamax, which was a Sony development, has tried 10 improve its position by under-

Well for special meni/mingre teams and hotel stopover ring 0769-67282. which has mesning and pur-pose, everything should above all be swept away". Robert Bresson said in a recent interview concerning his latest film L'Argent. Perhaps not quite everything, otherwise we would be staring at a blank screen -but the 75-year-old French director sweeps away more than most cinema practitioners.

> The film's physical action several bloody murders included - is rarely laid before as openly; events are implied through the editing of shot against shot. There is no extraneous soundtrack music, and no obvious acting - not even from Caroline Lang. daughter of France's controversial Minister of Cal-ture, Jack Lang. This is by design: "Expression does not come from the gesture or intonation of an actor", Bresson argues, "but from the relation-ship between image and sound".

The image, moreover, is never cushioned in laxary: though the film is shot in colour, the times

Films on TV

The Russian-born Rouben Mamoulian may not enjoy the reputation of some other directors from the golden age of Hollywood but he brought to his films an elegance and visual flair that clearly shows him as master of the medium.
From Applause in 1929; through City Streets and Queen

Christina to his last picture, Silk Stockings, he produced a distinguished body of work that would have been bigger had not his independent spirit been in frequent collision with the studio system.

Among the projects he started but failed to finish were Laura, Porgy and Best and the ill-fated Cleopatra and a total of 16 films in 28 years is hardly prolific. In Maxonlian's case, though, qual-

strikingly deployed in films like Le Journal d'un Curé de
Campagne (1950), Mouchette
(1966) and Lancelot du Lac (1974) — remains unique and remarkable; Yet the "meaning and purpose" of L'Argent;

Die, with Martha Raye and a host of splendid character ity speaks louder than quantity. The Mark of Zorro, made in 1940 and showing on Channel 4 today (2.50-4.35pm) is a characteristic Mamoulian film; what Rumann in other hands, could have been a routine swashbuckler is transformed by the director's artistry. Tyrone Power plays the black-masked hero, with Basil Rathbone in villainous support. Claude. Chabrol make his name with atmospheric thrillers and has dynamic performances not only by Brando but Rod Steiger, Lee J. Cobb and Karl owing not a little to his idol, Hitchrock, but Le Cheval d'Orgeuil on BBC2 tonight (1.05pm-1.05am) represents a change of direction to a portrayal of peasant life in Brittany during the first four decades of this century. It was made, mainly with a Breton cast, in 1980.

On Channel 4 tomorrow (2.25-3.55pm) there is the 1939 Bob Hope comedy, Never Say

THREE SPINES FESTIVAL: The spires belong to the Victorian cathedral of Truro, which is the setting for a week of concerts, including a performance of the Monteverdi Vespers, conducted by Richard Hickox; John Lill playing Beethoven's Emperor Concerto; and a programme for Cornish brass and voice. Further information on

EXIT THE KING: The first important revival of lonesco's metaphysical epic since the Royal Court's production 20 years ago. James
-Aubrey plays the king who must learn the necessity of death as his palace crumbles symbolically about him; Julia Blalock and Gayle Humnicutt are cast as his two wives. Directed by Christopher Fettes, Lyric Studio, Hammersmith (741 2311). Preview today 8pm; opens Mon at 7pm; Mon-Sat at 8pm for a short season.

Tomorrow

HOME ON SUNDAY: In the first of a new series, Mrs Rosalind Runcie, the wife of the Archbishop of Canterbury, talks to Cliff Michelmore about her life and beliefs and chooses her six favourite hymns. She also comments on her husband's singing voice and reveals that she nearly broke off her engagement because of objections from her atheist father, Future subjects will include Lady Stansgate, mother of Tony Benn; Julian Lloyd Webber, the musician; and Kitty Muggeridge, wife of Malcolm, BBC1 6.40-7.15pm.

OPIUM - A DEADLY HARVEST: The latest programme in The World About Us series examines the tangled politics behind the oplum trade of South-East Asia and reveals that instead of trying to stop the trafficking of heroin, the governments of Burma, Thailand and Vietnam are actually encouraging it. The film was compiled from material shot in these countries and in France and includes Interviews with eve-witnesses and experts. BBC2, 7.15-8.05pm.

BIRTH OF A NATION: The first of four 90minute films written by David Leland and presenting a provocative view of our education system. It is set in a large comprehensive school where a teacher finds himself at the centre of controversy for defying the old teaching methods, and former pupils, disillusioned by the dole queues, gather menacingly outside the gates. With Jim Broadbent and Robert Stephens, ITV, 9.30-11pm.

Monday

PROMENADE CONCERTS: POSTA bookings for the 1983 season open today. For the last night (Sept 17) seats will not be allocated by ballot but sold on a first-come, firstserved basis to those booking for at least four other concerts. The season starts on July 22 and has a strong Polish element. Applications to Box Office, Royal Albert Hall, London SW7, enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

WIMBLEDON: Can only mean overpriced strawberries, John McEnroe feuding with umpires and the duicet tones of Dan Maskell who has not missed a day's play since 1927. Jimmy Connors and Martina Navratilova are the defending champions; Bjorn Borg joins the television commentary team. Play starts each day at 2pm and there is extensive coverage on both BBC channels, with a "Match of the Day" in the evening on BBC2.

THE WEEK AHEAD

SUMMER ART: Paintings which conjure up all the feelings of hot summer days dominate a sale of modern British art. "The Gooseboy" by Dorothea Sharpe shows a little boy driving geese through an orchard coloured in the soft greens and golds of summer evenings (£3,000-£4,000) and in the same flavour "Morning Sunshine" by Harold Harvey, of two girls in pretty dresses (£6,000-£8,000). Phillips, Blenheim Street, London W1 (629 6602)

EAR TO THE GROUND: New current affairs programme made by and for the 18 to 25 age group. Hazel O'Connor is the guest, talking about her past week; there is a profile of the young fashion model Sophie Ward; and a report about youth training schemes. Another regular feature is a six-minute situation comedy in which a fictional south London family react to an Issue discussed in the programme. Channel 4, 11-11.55pm.

Tuesday

NAUTICAL SALES: Anyone who loves messing around in beat loves messing around in boats had better be at Sotheby's today where a morning auction of ship paintings is followed by an afternoon sale Wednesday of ship models, shells, scrimshaw, nautical instruments and everything historically associated with seamanship. There is a fascinating Charles William Wyllis "Home from the Brazils" (estimate £6,000-£8,000) and a 1700 dockyard model of a ship of the line (estimate £20,000-£25,000); lots of little things as well. Sotheby's, Bond Street, London W1 (493 8080) 11 am and 2.30 pm.

CLASSICISM REVIVED: Greece and Rome keep on swinging back into fashion, first in the Renaissance, then with the neoclassicism of the romantic era. Here is a sale of nineteenth-century pictures in neoclassical style, which would have been worthless 20 years ago, and will now break all records, Jacques Louis David's "Belisarius" and Burne-Jones's "Mirror of Venus" are among the front runners, Sotheby's, Bond

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM: The second New Shakespeare company production to take on the English summer in Regent's Park, Directed by Christopher Biggins, with John Curry and Peter Woodward, Open Air Theatre, London NW1 (486 2431). Street, London. W1 (493 8080) 7pm.

SHOUTS: The busiest fire station in Britain, at Brixton in south London, is the subject of the BBC Tuesday
Documentary. The cameras follow the 13 firemen, and their two gleaming fire engines, through a night of "shouts", or alarm calls, during which they attend to trapped Alsatian dogs, a minor fire in a telephone box and a blazing house in which an old man is fighting for his life. BRC1 9 25-10 15cm. BBC1, 9.25-10.15pm.

THE STATE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT: Thanks to the reneral election, the ceremonial start to the new parliamentary session is earlier this year. The Queen travels in the irish state coach from Buckingham Palace to Westminster, where she delivers the speech from the throne outlining government legislation for the next 12 months. Television cameras are following the ceremony throughout, and the choice of commentators is between David Dimbleby on BBC1 and Alastair Burnet on ITV. From 10.55am.

WORLD CUP CRICKET: The Prudential World Cup reaches the semi-final stage today, with matches at Old Trafford and The Oval. On paper, the semi-finalists should be England, Pakistan, West Indies and Australia but there were enough upsets in the early matches to suggest that this will not necessarily be so. Television coverage on BBC1 and BBC2, and commentary on Radio 3 (medium wave); metiches start at 10,45am.

LIGHT DIMENSIONS: Exhibition on the evolution of holography, the projection by laser of a three-dimensional image on a piece of glass or film coated with photographic emulsion. The theory was first developed by Professor Denis Gabor in England in 1948 but could not be put into practice until the invention of the laser 13 years later. National Centre of Photography, The Octagon, Bath (0225 62841). Daily 10am-8pm. Adults £1.50, students £1.25, children, pensioners and unemployed £1. Until Sept 10.

RAILWAYS, ANHISTORIC COLLECTION: A unique documentation of the blank documentation of the history of railways - a huge collection of books, drawings, bound prints, documents, agazines and other rail ephemera – will be sold today. Comprising 600 lots, it is the celebrated second collection of ssor F. J. G. Haut; the first was selzed by the Gestapo and destroyed in an air raid. Prices range from £10-£3,500. Phillips, Blenheim Street, London W1 (629)

NOLIVER MESSEL: Though noted primarily for his stylish stage and film designs in Britain during the 1940s and 1950s, Messel was also an artist of unexpected versatility when it came to designing fabrics or interiors. Towards the end of his life, he became the architect of many houses and public buildings in Barbados, where he settled. The present exhibition is drawn from materials left to Messel's nephew, Lord Snowdon, and placed by him on indefinite loan to the Theatre Museum; it is the first retrospective, Victoria and

Albert Museum, Cromwell Road, London SW7 (589 6371). Until October 30, Mon-

magic of Mosel

Drink

Elemental

Germany's greatest wines are made from the Riesling grape made from the kiesing graps and for me the greatest German Rieslings come from the Mosel. There's something about the clean cut, slatey, green elegance of a magnificent Mosel that other countries' winemakers find impossible to imitate;

Despite the enviable reputation of the top Mosels no one could envy this region's reputhe wines have been likened to flavoured sugar water. For Germany's recent rotten run of vintages, coupled with growing demand has also proved an irresistible temptation for several unscrupulous Mosel growers and merchants who have been caught blending in foreign wine (mainly Italian) as well as chemicals and other ingredients. The 82 harvest will, it is hoped, put an end to all that, for although the quality is poor, its enormous crop has been the largest on record for many years. However, this year's dramatic spring and summer floods along the Mosel do not augur well for the '83 vintage,

But the region's beauty is undiminished; fairytale castles tower above the sheer, steep patchwork of vines and Hansel and Gretei houses pass by mile after mile if you travel down by

If the scenery is idyllic as you glide by the riverside vineyards, working them is a back-break-ing task for their owners, for mechanization is impossible in these steep vineyards where each vine is trained on a single stick. Every year the blue-black slately soil has to be shored up before the winter rains, and vineyard workers will often have to go back to the same vine as many as 17 times in a year to tend the plant.

The Moselle is divided into three main areas. The lower Mosel from Koblenz to Zell produces the least distinguished Mosel wines of all, from much flatter vineyards. But from Zell down to Kasel is Germany's answer to the Medoc - the Mittelmosel whose tortuous turns boast one famous vineyard name after another. famous Bernkastel Doktor is undoubtedly one of the most celebrated of these, and with prices to match Mosel lovers have moved to one of the other Mittelmosel wine villages such as Urzig near by. Urzig is renowned for its racy, spicy wines and one of its most important vineyards is the delightful sounding Würzgarten or spice garden. Sainsbury's have a fine Urziger Wirzgarten Auslese from the excellent '75 vintage (£5.99).

Considerably to the south and west of Urzig, though not strictly part of the third area of the upper Mosel is a tiny tributary of the Mosel, the Ruwer, that in most years has little to offer, but in a very good year like 1976 (remember our hot summer of 76?) can produce treats such as the von Schuberts Maximin Grünhauser. Abtsberg's glorious rich statey of Spatiese. (John Harvey & Sons, 27 Pall Mall, London SW1 and 12 Denmark Street, Bristol, £6.69; and O.W. Loeb, 15 Jermyn Street, London W1, £8.78.)

To the west and south of the Ruwer is the Mosel's most important tributary, the Saar, whose slate and steel wines are I which the most magical that this region produces. The Priedrich Wilhelm Gymnasium (Karl Marx's old school) is one of the in the Saar and their racy Ockfener Geisberg Riesling '81 (Henry Townsend, Chalk Pit House, Coleshill, Amersham, Bucks, £3.72) simply bursts with fruit and flavour.

There is no doubt too about the greatness of the first four official world champions, Steinitz, Emanuel Lasker, Capablanca and Alekhine. But there is a distinct plateau with Euwe who, though he contributed much to chess was hardly of the same stature as his predessors. Then, with the rise of the Soviet Union in the world of chess, we get a constant succession of immortals: Botvinnik, Smyslov, Tal. Petrosian and Spassky.

A relief from this somewhat monotonous flow of marvellous players came with Bobby Fisher's defeat of Spassky at Reykjavik in 1972 and though

But the explanation for 1NT-24 bearing no invitational sense rests on logic rather than a Victorian aunt's unreasoning dogma. It makes no difference

Professor Higgins, with his keen whether West's no trump was ear for dialect, could tell to strong or weak. If East wished to investigate game he should have used a different sequence. Whereas the pundits would be unanimous about INT-24. there would be a sharp division of opinion about these next two

2NT 2NT 3NT In the old days the leading Acol authorities, Harrison-Gray and Marx, claimed that sequence (a) was a mild slam try, showing a six-card suit and about nine points. It followed that sequence (b) contained no forward going messages.

The modern school, partly in deference to the Italian principle of fast arrival, treat sequence (a) as terminal, and use sequence (b) to issue a gentle invitation. You may think that the moderns share with the rag trade the need to change the fashion in order to peddle their wares. But in fairness, they have logic on their side. It is generally accepted these days that the two no trump opener can show his response by making a cue bid. Here are three hands West might hold to justify his opening bid of 2NT.

(a) (b) +K4 +K54 VAQ63 VKQ9 VAQ52 VA653 +AJ4 +AKJ ♦AK6 If East responds three spades, what should West say next? On

(a), West, with only a doubleton spade, rebids 3NT. On (b), despite his lack of shape, West raises to four spades. It would be a bad mistake to rebid 3NT because East might hold a moderate hand with a shortage in diamonds. On (c), West has an excellent hand in support of spades, so he issues a clear cut message of encouragement with a cue bid of four clubs.

The effect of playing 2NT-34
as the potentially stronger sequence is to permit an exchange of information at the four level, as opposed to the five level when 2NT-44 is used as a slam try.

Even when bridge players do speak the same language, inevitably there are occasional enthusiasm for his partner's spectacular misunderstandings.

This was the bidding in a bidding competition on a radio programme many years ago. Each competitor was in a separate studio, alone with the microphone.

At this point the commentator, unheard by the contestants, sagely pointed out that East's four clubs was the key bid. Six no trumps is impossible against sound defence, whereas in 64 declarer can establish a fifth spade for the twelfth trick.

Inexplicably, West, a nervous young girl, passed. Later, she tearfully explained that it was that awful thing", referring to the offending microphone. That girl is now one of Britain's leading players.

Seafood to sing about at L'Opéra

This week we look at two restaurants that might be useful to complete a night at the opera

L'OPERA, 32 Great Queen Street, London, WC2 (405 9020), Open noon-3 pm, 6 pm-midnight (last orders), not Saturday lunches or Sundays

L'Opéra is one of the Joseph Berkmann restaurants recently acquired by the Kennedy Brookes catering group, which is expanding as rapidly as a soprano's bosom. The overture offered outside the door is a single bar of fresh shellfish, as near as London comes to the tiered displays outside some Paris establishments. L'Opéra claims its fresh seafood deliveries direct from Brittany are unique in London: a mixed platter carrying 14 varieties

Inside, the restaurant is long, green and quiet, the banquettes made more inviting with Thai silk scatter cushions. There is nothing operatic about the beyond Opera avocado (baked with prawns, £2.45) or Salade Nozze di Figaro (£2,55), which is composed with shrimps, avocado and walnuts, Langoustines (£4.95 for six) were fresh but faint A seafood probe was not offered, but produced on request. The chunks in the clam chowder (£2.40) were leathery and obstinately resilient. Darne de saumon pochée

(£5.95) came one and a half inches thick, under an oversalted julienne. Turbot with slivers of courgettes (£5.50) was hidden in a surprisingly dark and murky sauce, the fish so heavily egged it might as well have been sole. Side order vegetables (70p-90p each) though, were well cooked, both mange-tout and beans crunchily al dente. A cheeseboard of eight varieties and the sweet trolley looked almost as tired as some Covent Garden productions, so am afraid that, like singers loath to tackle the awkward bits, we left them out. The wine list of 100 varieties has some interesting Berkmann imports such as Gaja's Dolcetto d'Alba (£6.75) and Duboeuf's Cremant de Bourgogne (£9.75).

House wines are good and reasonably priced at £4.50. Simple three-course set meals (two choices on each) are £8.95.

BOULESTIN, 25 Southampton Street (entrance in Henrietta Street), London WC2 (836 3819 or 7061). Open noon-2-30pm, 7-30pm-11.15pm, not Saturday lunch or Sundays

Maxwell Joseph spent a fortune on refurbishing Boulestin; but he did not, alas, get full value for money. The remade basement room is still draughty in winter, and liable to overheat in summer. Who would expect, in such a temple, to see a bottlegas heater being trundled in from the wings to warm customers knees? Perhaps the humidity it caused contributed to the tough inedibility of the crisps in the opulent bar. It detracts from the comfortable feeling too, to 'notice while studying the menu that a 95p cover charge is insinuated at the bottom of the page, under cover of "Desserts". The place still attracts the fat cats who match the fatstock pictures on the walls though. Foie gras (£7.75) was off by the time we ordered.

Crab with artichoke (£4.85) came beautifully arranged - a pool of grelette sauce on each separate broad artichoke leaf and the whole thing prettified with frisée and radiccio. Millefeuille of salmon (£4.95) was a sliced puff cake with layers of underpowered salmon cream in a tomato sauce too sharpened to flatter it. Scallops sautéed with fresh truffles were served with pasta lumps (spatzles), brightly coloured but doughy, and in oversalted sauce. Magret de canard with egg en meurette (£7.75) was only just juicy enough, but vegetables (panaché £1.50) were good and attractively presented. Desserts from the trolley are £3. Crème brûlee fruit salad was nicely caramelized on top, but

The wine list, which starts at £10 a bottle, has a page of magnums and a page of half bottles (from which I had Louis Latour's Givry '76 at £7 to go with the duck). It also has some grandiose gestures, such as Haut Brion '26 (the year of the restaurant's foundation) at £175. Our Montagny 1979 was

The Crescent Funds, managed by Edinburgh Fund Managers Limited, have a fine track record in world markets, and an excellent reputation in the financial community. Now we are launching our new Crescent Resources Fund, to invest internationally in companies involved in such industries as oil and gas, metals, gold and agricultural products. The reason for this new Fund is one of simple confidence. Confidence that the world economy is starting to recover, and that as it does it will generate a rising demand for raw materials, including

We believe the new Fund offers investors the opportunity to back proven management expertise in an area where substantial capital appreciation has occurred in the past. Through investment in resource-based companies in other Funds, we have gained a lot of experience in the field, and all this experience is now pooled in the management of one new Fund. Some of this can be put down to the profit-taking mentality that was almost bound to make some appearance as soon as the election results had been counted and the pound notes could safely be counted too.

But there is more to it than this, Markets had discounted a lot of recovery and reality has a lot of catching up to do, as the latest industrial production figures showed. Demand is there in the economy, but if industry does not take advantage of it, it might go away, especially if wage stability meets

Conditions in the truck market were, if anything, worse last year than in 1981, but ERF, the Cheshire-based company which proudly designates itself "Britain's only independent truck manufacturer," managed a slim trading profit of £84,000. ERF hung on to its market savage cost cutting which has left little room for futher Recent results savings if the long term business Recent results is to remain intact. Interest charges on ERF's dept of approaching £7m gobbled up enough: to turn the trading profit into a pretax loss of £1.42m, although that was an improvement on the previous

In the longer term, however much will depend on the new truck models, one of which, at 16 tonnes, is ERF's first foray into the lighter end of the market for many years. The company hopes to gain 10 per cent of that market as well, but has no illusions about the problems in a market characterized by fierce discounting and the competitive advantage enjoyed by Swedish manufacturers from the devaluation of the kroner. It is not surprising, therefore, that neither the ordinary nor the preference shareholders will receive dividends. The market was nevertheless disappointed and marked the shares down 4p to close at 41p. It is clear that if ERF cannot improve its trading position soon a takeover, merger or further rationalization of the group will be necessary.

The gallant Soba ran her heart out to finish second, and On Stage, the most fancied of Bill O'Gorman's two runners, was a further 21/2 lengths away third.

The trainer has always been well aware of Sayf El Arab's ability. Last spring when Bron-desbury was running up his sequence of victories O'Gorman was insisting that Sayf El Arab was an equally talented colt. "At that time, he was working well with the Temple Stakes winner Mummy's Game. attempt to close the gap, but National Stakes and was slightly could only get within one and a disappointing afterwards." But unfortunately he fractured a

My father won it twice with Drum Beat, and Majority Rule." Plans for the trainer's strong team of sprinters depends on what happens to Brondesbury. "We want to run him against the fastest quarter-horses in America over the horses in America over two furlongs. But negotiations have not yet been finalised." On Stage definitely goes for New-market's July Cup. Goodwood's King George Stakes and the William Hill Sprint Championship at York are the target for Sayf El Arab and, perhaps,

Brondesbury. The topsy-turvey nature of this unpredictable Ascot continued when the punters' blind faith in David Elsworth was justified when the 7-1 favourite Melindra won the 27-runner the equally heavy gamble on Milk Heart by more than a neck. Following the success of Mighty Fly in the Royal Hunt Cup Elsworth has certainly become the only trainer to have won Ascot's two big handicaps with fillies. John Sutcliffe was the last man to complete the double with Tempest Boy and Le Johnstan in 1972. Far more attention was focussed on Milindra's owner than on the trainer in the unsaddling enclosure. Angela. Winfield, from Great Missenden, must certainly be the only serving policewoman to have greeted a Royal Ascot winner.

Favourite backers had started the afternoon on a good note when Defecting Dancer had stamped himself as a two-yearold of high merit with a convincing victory in the Windsor Castle Stakes. This win gave Henry Cecil and Lester Piggott a double at the meeting. But this win was also a source of great pride to Defect-ing Dancer's owner, Sheikh Mohammed.

"This is the first winner that my family has bred in this country but it certainly won't be the last," the Maktoum brothers from Dubei have over 60 mares at their three studs.

Bill Watts, the Richmond trainer, had his sixth winner at the royal meeting when Willie Carson took a firm hold on the jockey's title at the fixture by riding Lord Derby's Teleprompter to victory in the Britannia Stakes, and finally Carson had his fifth success of the four days on Sandalay in the concluding Queen Alexandra Stakes.

Royal Acot's popularity con-tinues to increase and the magnificent fiesta of racing was enjoyed by a total crowd of 170,704, an increase of over ,000 on last year's figure of Ring of Greatness (Bruce Raymond) can beat five opponents and an unfamiliar dirt track in the £13,158 Grand Prix de Bruxelles (11f) at Boltsfort, Belgium, tomor-row. John Duniop's colt was no match for Tomm Okker, when finishing third at Epsom a fortnight ago,, but be has an easy task here.

Celebration time for Stanerra and Brian Rouse after another resounding Royal Ascot victory

Rudolfina to teach juniors lesson

By Desmond Stoneham, French Racing Correspondent

Racing sees the focus of attention switch from the flat to the umping game, with Autenil staging the Grand Steeplechase de Paris.
Flat racing enthusiasts will have their crack of the whip today at Saint-Cloud, but there is a disappointing turn out for the feature event, the Prix Fille de l'Air.

Three year ago Detroit beat Gold River in this race, and history relates that they both went on to win an Are de Triomphe. However, there are only five runners for the one mile, two furlongs contest this time, and I cannot envisage any of them going on to such dizzy heights on the first Sunday in October. Rudolfina can strike a blow for the year-olds, Brillante and Faraono, for clinch the £64,000 first prize, at the main expense of Jasmin. The selection, who is bidding to win the the £14,639 first prize.

Jacko Cunnington's four-year-old scored nicely over ten furlongs at Longobamp last month, and on only race for the second year running, beat Jasmin in the Prix Millionaire marginally worse terms should have little difficulty in confirming the form with the ex-Frank Durrurained, Darine, who finished third. at Auteuil last month, and has subsequently showed his well being Josh Gifford-trained Shady Deal who will be in the nine-strong field

Rudolfina relishes the faster ground which is at present prevailing, and I am fairly confident that she can account for the slightly disappointing Brillante.

The Grand Steeplechase is a most spectacular race to watch, with the runners covering 3m 5f and encountering a variety of obstacles which include a stone wall and a builfinch. I expect Metatero to

Autumn Sunset to steal glory again

By Michael Phillips, Racing Correspondent

He rans Autumn Sunset in the James Lane Hamdicap at Ascot today, just a week after winning a similar race at York. Even a 10lb penalty that victory entailed may not stop Autumn Sunset, who is clearly on the upgrade and at the right end of the handicap. Admittedly, he will be meeting the useful Bold Secret on 5lb worse terms than at York and Sharpish on 10tb. worse terms than when they clashed at Sandown before that. But even that may not make, any difference to the result. Stoute's horses are now in form and he would not be running Autumn Sunset with a penalty of this kind unless he was pretty confident of return-ing home with the spoils. On the other hand, a penalty may well deny Sedra another victory in the Fern Hill Handicap. There was much to admire in the way that she humped 9st 11b to a memorable triumph in the Ebbisham Handicap at Epsom on Oaks day yet with the inevitable penalty she will now be meeting Be My Darling on 8lb worse terms and that, for two lengths, should be sufficient to tilt the scales in Be My Darling's favour. Be My Darling's trainer,

Geoff Lewis, has stuck to his intention, and, declared the recent Newbury winner Turn And Fly for the Errol Stakes in which Lord Porchester's promising Goodwood winner Finian's Rainbow will be well fancied to end the week on a high note for his owner and

On a line through Rex Lake, who was beaten initially by Finian's Rainbow at Goodwood and then again by Turn And Fly at Newbury Finian's Rainbow appears to have the edge now, especially as he started slowly at Goodwood. However, not even Varcarme according to George correspondent. Apparently, Varcarme, who is by Lyphard out of that good mare Virunga, has been shaping really well in

Michael Stoute certainty Stakes which is confined to believes in striking while the two-year-old fillies who have iron is still hot. And why not? never run. A 220,000 guineas purchase last autumn on behalf of Hamdan Al-Maktoum, Aldhabyih is a half-sister to that fast horse Kasu by General Assembly

Society Boy, a Derby hopeful until the Lingfield trial exposed his limitations, has a decent opportunity to redeem himself in the Churchill Stakes now that the ground is to his liking again. . Before Lingfield, Society Boy had run well enough behind Sheerwalk in the Heathorn Stakes at Newmarket to suggest that a prize like this should be there for the taking.

There is also racing at Ayr. Redcar and Warwick today. At Ayr the Long John Scotch Whisky Handicap could provide that able young trainer Mark Usher with yet another success in this his first season as a licence holder, following a useful apprenticeship spent along the state of the season with the season that the season with th Henry Candy, Usher has taken Portogon on the long journey from Lambourn to Ayr once already this season and returned home happy thanks to an inspired ride from Dennis McKay. Portogon (2.30) should oblige again. Also busy raiding the Scottish course are Jeremy Hindley and Bill O'Gorman. Persian Tiara (1.30) and Fawzi (3.0) can complete a double for Hindley while Jizan can follow up his victory at Bath last Saturday by taking the valuable Belleisle Stakes at the expense of Red Lory and Oystons

At Redcar there is reason to think that Rambling River can repeat his victory on the course at the end of May in the Hansa Lager Sprint Cup.

in the evening the spotlight will switch to Warwick, where the rather grandly named Warwick Oaks is the feature race. Whether it be Royal Ascot be may be up to beating or Warwick there are few better bred fillies in training than Robinson, our Newmarket Elect, who is by Vaguely Noble out of Monade, a mare who won the Epsom Oaks in her heyday. Elect is not blessed with the best of legs and I know that her connexions would be happy

Black clouds gathering round Ballesteros as lead is washed away

From John Hennessy, Golf Correspondent, Pittsburg

Severiano Ballesteros surren- 73 on the first day, was a late after he had played the shot dered his share of the lead on the second day of the United States Open golf championship at Oakmont country club yesterday. He added a 74, three over par, to his 69 of the day before, and so stands one over par at the halfway stage of the tournament.. As he strode from the last green with thunder on his brow, there was a corresponding crack in the heavens and a violent thunderstorm rapidly flooded the course.

John Mahaffey who had stood shoulder to shoulder with Ballesteros and Bob Murphy overnight, achieved a rare birdie on the 18th, a hole which had yielded only two all through Thursday, and so finished with two strokes ahead of Ballesteros on 141.

Mahaffey was joined in the club house by the unlikely figure of Joe Rassett, familiar to connoisseurs of the game at home from his inclusion in the victorious Walker Cup team at Cypress Point in 1981, and from a brief flirtation with the European tour on turning professional last year. The summit of his achievements in Europe ws a tie for eighth place, hardly prepared us for the distinction he has achieved here this week. Rassett scored a second round of 69, the best among the early starters.

Raymond Floyd and Tom Watson, both with 70, yesterday moved ahead of Ballesteros on starter yesterday. Murphy conveyed the irritation of a rapidly vanished into oblivion. Ballesteros was again defeated demands of himself, by the first hole, the hardest on Thus he remain statistics of the first day when only six birdies were recorded.

Ballesteros was again causevere disappointment, for he is would have saved his par. probably the best bunker player Rassett, like so many others,

But Ballesteros found the and on the first hole he was going harder coming home. He vasily outdriven by Tom lost shots at the 10th and 14th Weiskopf. Even so, it was well and thereby surrendered the set up and a second into a lead. Finally at the 18th where bunker belied expectations, ours he had taken five on the first as well as his. For once he failed day, he drove into the rough to get up and down, another and missed the six foot putt that

Watson, both with 70, yesterday moved ahead of Ballesteros on 142. Jack Nicklaus who had a ninth. A thrash of thigh here huge bunker complex straggling Faldo enjoys a stroll through the park

Everything is going according to plan for Nick Faldo after a second successive round of 65 carried him two strokes clear at the halfway stage of the £56,000 Timex Open on the Biarritz course here yesterday. Manuel Ballesteros, of Spain, and Vicente Fernandez, of Argentina, also returned scores of 65 to share second place and Gordon Brand is one stroke further back after an excellent 64.

Even Faldo, in spite of stressing accepts that so far it has been a walk in the park for him as he moves towards a fourth win in six events.

flawless exhibition and watching him swing in such a relaxed fashion gave one the feeling that if he was given a gentle nudge then he might threaten the magical 60 barrier.

For a short time it seemed that Brand, his playing partner, might achieve just that. His four-iron that have the content of the seemed that he was the content of the seemed that he was the seemed that the seemed th approach to the long first finished approach to the long first thissen on by six inches away for an easy eagle and he made another by successfully holing from 18 feet at the 479 yards third. A putt of similar length at the fourth brought a birdie and before he knew it the amiable Yorkshireman was siready five under par. However, his momentum was disrupted when he visited two bunkers at the short fifth where he was forced to single putt to escape with a four. After that be exchanged shots to par with some regularity but he is still poised to offer some resistance to the effervescent Faldo.

Yer, if Faldo is to be beaten, then the man who could succeed is the other Ballesteros. Spurred not by the news that Severiano was leading the US Open, for he politely asked not Os Open, for he politery asked not to be told about events in America until after his round. Manuel collected four birdies and an eagle. He would have shared the lead with Faldo but for taking five at the short Ballesteros won the Basque Open on this course in 1969. Since then he has patiently lived in the shadow of Seve. He openly acknowledges that his own game has suffered by the compelling desire to watch over his younger brother and share his successes and disappointments. Now he is cocconing himself in concentration to try and make his own breakthrough only three days before his 34th birthday.

TENNIS: CASUALTIES ON THE ROAD TO WIMBLEDON

Chilean warning of thunder

By Richard Eaton

Ricardo Acuna, a 25-year-old Chilean ranked 146th in the world, who had never played in a grass-court tournament until last week Johan Kriek, to within sight of defeat in the West of England championships at Bristol. It was a warning to Britain's Davis Cup who play Chile in the international zone relegation match in September. Acuna's 6-4, 6-7, 6-4 loss to Krick was perhaps one of the most remarkable results of a tournament that has already lost all of its seeds except the South African and is already guaranteed at least on unseeded finalist. Acuna has a thunderous first serve, especially for a man of 5ft 9in, a good volley, and a superbly accurate sliced backhand that is as effective on grass as his whipped, topspin ground strokes on both wings. Come September. Moltram and company may be in for a difficult time.

"He surprised me I must say", said Krick. "I expected him to stay behind the baseline but he's a heck of a good server and volleyer and in the final set I just had to try to stay with him and return well". During that set Acuna held a break of serve to lead 2-0 and only lost because Knek, who has beaten every top man in the game except Borg, dug deep into his mine of resources and found 2 rich seam of inspirational ground strokes.

But then this was a match of inspiration, eccentricity, and inadequacy. Knek's topspin lobs, which must perform the most dramatic parabolas in the game, once had Acuna demolishing the advertisers' hoarding and once struggling in the middle of the canvas back like a camper in collapsed tent. Kriek's serving expecially when he most needed it was sometimes an anti-climax. He delivered two double faults when serving for the match at 5-4 in the second set and two more in the first game of the final set. He also caused the humiliating removal in the middle of a game of a line judge whose decision he disliked.

Krick, who is now an American cutren, plays Lloyd Bourne in one of today's semi-finals, while another unseeded American. Tom Gullikcon, won 6-3, 6-4 against another South American, Marcos Hocevar, a Brazilian with the nickname of "the magician". Gullikson, who thus claimed his second seeded victim in ciaimed his second seeded victim in succession, was in no mood for any remarkable escape act at his expense. Miss Austin forced to retire championship series.

The relevant regulation reads:
"The selection of seeds will be based as closely as possible on the latest computer rankings." Wimbledon's seedings reversed the rankings of Sylvia Hanika and Hana Mandliko-va, omitted Zina Garrison (ranked 15th) and promoted Joanna Durie from 17th in the rankings to 13th in the seedings.

"I'm not arguing the merits of this particular case." Diamond said yesterday. "But the rule is there and it should be adhered to."

Christopher Gorringe. Wimble-don's chief executive, said that their agreement to be part of any series was always subject to their own rules and regulations. "One of those is that we will exercise the right to take into account current form and the fact that we are a grass court

Miss Garrison, the injured party, is unconcerned by the fuss. Whether seeded or not, she plays well enough on grass to give herself a chance against almost anyone. Yesterday she played a good match against Miss Navratilova but was beaten 6-2. 6-3. The challenge to the powerful, puring machinery of Miss Navratilova's game was

> What separates Tinling's era from McEnroe's is a question of manners, the importance of which Evans, having helped portray in the first book questions in the second. He quotes McEnroe, jn, on the most fundamental misconcept tion of all modern professional: 'It's business out there and there is no room for personal

> In the most depressing sequence of false premises Evans, a writer of considerable experience, has attempted to justify the excesses of the 1981 Wimbledon champion: "What we have here is a hard man, born to achieve, destined to be misunderstood, driven by an inner rage for perfection the ordinary man cannot comprehend. There has never been a tennis player like him."

Bunk. Only the last part, regrettably, is true. What we have here is a man seemingly badly brought up by a demanding mother dissatisfied with his 95 per cent in exams and a per cent in exams and a father who apparently did nothing to dissuade his son from quitting a tennis club who suspended him temporarily for throwing a flaming towel into a girl's dormitory.

His behaviour is apparently excused on the ground that he wants to win 6-0. 6-0. 6-0, a sensation which most of us experienced on the nursery floor and learnt to control along with other functions. Tennis. Evans claims, is not a gentle game but psychologically vicious, a confidence trick perpetrated upon the unsophisticated public. I charm school, the other the suppose you could say the same angry brigade. Teddy Tinling's of chess.

On the one hand McEnroe's unpleasantpess on court is "a physical and emotional necessand an outlet for his compressed steam, on the other he is a child allowing his temper to go as far as officials let it." Well, one or the other, have known or watched almost but not both. It is also wrong. every great player in history, to apparently, to expect sporting genius to behave like everyone with the administration of the else. Rod Laver, who did the Wimbledon championships, grand slam as amateur and professional aged it.

One of the definitions of democracy is complete freedon for the individual so long as it does not interfere with the freedom of anyone else. In Those who believe, the several ways that definition is at

Christine Truman: the pre-machine age prodigy

Another day and not one dollar

Like Christine Truman all over again, they say, as Joanne Durie, another splendid six-foot British tennis girl suddenly finds herself blinking at flashbulbs, but Christine Truman herself, who would be a millionsire if she played tennis today, is less than envious. "I don't begrudge players all this money they get now. It had to come, didn't it? I just wish they looked a bit happier about it."

Christine Truman, Christine James, is dusting off her voice getting ready to say things like "terrific forehand" on the radio at Wimbledon. She had a pretty terrific forehand herself: "I never had much idea of tactics in my head, I just used to hit the ball as hard as I could. Quite often it didn't come

She was a teenage prodigy, of course, in the age before the ternage prodigies population explosion. No end of guff about ginger pop princesses and cream cakes was written about her. She paved the way for the army of brace-toothed, pig-tailed, baseline-bound, double-fisted metronomes of today's tennis. "I suppose it's easy for a hasbeen like me to scoff. They don't know any different, you can't expect them to. In the way that an only child can never understand what it is like to have brothers and sisters.

"I feel concerned about these young players who travel round the world playing like machines.

I was not allowed to enter Wimbledon until I was 16, and I may be old-fashioned, but I think that was a good thing."

Tennis, you gather, was for her a series of treats, playing at tournaments was a priviledge. and playing at Wimbledon was something beyond even that, She seems rather dazed when she considers the jam-packed, dollar-to-dollar schedules of today's players: "Constant competition and pressure aren't are meant to be young and fit. You used to have local players but they always seem to have turning up at their home Most sports have changed over the last 20 years, but it would be hard to find a game that has been as drastically turned on its head as tennis. 'All the pressures, the off-court pressures of commercial tennis get to players. "Of course I didn't make money from tennis, but it didn't cost me anything. We were invited to tournaments, and we were taken to them and looked after when we got there. And we behaved like guests. These days. you make your own way to a tournament and take what you can get.

"I'm sad that the men and women have separate circuits now, and hardly ever come into contact except at the major tournaments. The easy mixing was all part of the fun, and part of the learning about tennis too. I often used to practice with people like Manuel Santana".

Dollars and computers are vital in tennis today, and "Look at all these young though nobody objects to the players with all their infuries former, Mrs Janes is not happy and ice-packs and treatment, about the latter. "Surprises are like old ladies. Sports players good for tennis, for all sport.

injury strapped up, tournament and taking a set or Perhaps they need to organize a match off a player with a big their programmes better...or name, and that was always good simply play less. All these for the game. These days sprains and pulls come from 100 everyone has their ranking on much play, too much nervous the computer, and that sort of shock just doesn't happen. Computer rankings also encourage predictable tennis. and predictable sport is boring. People tend to play to the level at which the computer assesses them: I'm number 14, so I'm not going to beat number 11

But Mrs Janes finds it hard to reconcile the stratospheric sums earned by the starlets of today with her own comfortable by un-Guccified life. Today, to win the Italian, Swiss and French Opens, and be a Forest Hills finalist, all in a year, would leave you with a couple of bob in the bank Miss Truman collected glory in sackfulls, Mrs Janes mostly has confusing memories of matches that seemed to have happened to someone else. "Well you can only eat three meals a day, can't you? Having all those thou-sands would have its own worries. I'm just happy that I can get the little extras on top of the three meals - the shoes that complete the outfit, you know? I'm sure it was all more fun when I was playing." Simon Barnes

Ballot for Whip is Labour's first test

SATURDAY JUNE 18 1983

By Anthony Bevins Political Correspondent

Labour's shadow Cabinet is to be asked to decide next Wednesday whether to allow a test contest for the post of Opposition Chief Whip, which could pave the way for a palace revolution inside the party at Westminster. Mr Michael Cocks, aged 53, has been Labour's Chief Whip for the last seven year, and he would undoubtedly face strong competition in any election.

Labour's young blood, the party's middle-rank spoksmen who have mobilized the Kinnock-Hattersley campaigns, are intent upon a purge of the old guard in the shadow Cabinet. and they see the contest for the Chief Whip's job as an ideal test for the new 209-strong parliamentary party.
A Chief Whip's ballot would show whether the party was in a mood for a generation jump on the front bench, and it would also help to indicate the direction in which the parliamentary party has moved in the wake of the general election.

There are some MPs who feel that the left out-number the right by as many as two-to-one, while the right suggest that the left-wing majority is much more

An early contest would indicate the way in which MPs might go in the electoral college contest for leader and deputy leader on October 2.

The current wisdom is that Mr Neil Kinnock would com-mand more votes than Mr Roy Hattersley among his parliamentary colleagues, and that Mr Shore and Eric Heffer, the other two leadership contenders, would trail well behind.

In the run-off, it is thought that Mr Kinnock's share of the parliamentary votes would exceed 17.5 per cent of that section of the college. If, as suggested. Mr Kinnock would get four-to-one backing in the constituencies, another 30 per cent of the college, he would have established more than 40 per cent of the college even without the Transport and General Workers' Union's
